

EMPIRE CONFERENCE SET TO EN SATURDAY

STRATOSPHERE RECORD IS SET BY DR. PICCARD

Daring Belgian Professor and Young Companion Land Balloon in Northern Italy After Rising Higher Than Any Man in History; Started From Zurich

Floated Over Ten Miles Above Earth

Canadian Press and Associated Press Dispatches

Cavallaro di Monzandrano, Italy, Aug. 18.—Prof. Auguste Piccard, back from his second balloon ascension to the stratosphere, disclosed this afternoon he and Max Cosyn, his young companion, had gone farther into the sky than any man had ever gone before.

"We went up 16,700 metres," he said. "That is a world record."

Edolo, Italy, Aug. 18.—Prof. Auguste Piccard's second excursion into the stratosphere ended at 5 o'clock this afternoon when he brought his balloon down after almost twelve hours in the upper atmosphere.

The gondola bumped to a landing in a field on the outskirts of this little town, whose entire population of 2,500 turned out to welcome Dr. Piccard and Max Cosyn, his companion.

Edolo is in the Gamone Valley, sixty miles north of Brescia.

There was practically no wind and the balloon came down easily.

PROFITABLE VOYAGE

The bushy-haired little scientist and his young assistant stepped out of the aluminum sphere, smiling broadly.

"Well," said Prof. Piccard, "that was a profitable trip."

The landing operation required about two hours.

SALMON PACK IS ABOVE 1931 TOTAL

British Columbia Catches So Far This Year Encouraging, Says Supervisor Motherwell

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 18.—British Columbia's salmon pack this year to date totals 565,944 cases, compared with 437,596 at the corresponding time last year, according to figures issued by Major J. A. Motherwell, chief supervisor.

The sockeye pack is comparing favorably with that of previous years and there should be no apprehension as to the future supply of all varieties of salmon in this province, it is noted in a statement issued by the chief supervisor.

The sockeye pack, the most valuable variety, totals 230,475 cases to date, comparing most favorably with previous years, in view of the fact that twelve days of good fishing were

District Exhibits Create Competition

Keen Rivalry For J. W. Tolmie Cup at Provincial Fair

Four Districts Perform Honors; Can Surrey Perform "Hat Trick?"

Of the floral, fruit and vegetable exhibits which will contribute to the riot of color in the main building at the Provincial Exhibition grounds, none surpasses those entered in the district exhibits, as those who attend the seventy-first annual fair next week will discover.

Although Burquitlam, one of the five districts that helped make last year's entry a record one in point of number, has not entered this year, there are four districts in competition for the honors. Surrey, which won last year and the year before, will again have a big display, but will be met by a fine Victoria entry and entries from the mainland districts of Richmond and Langley.

BIG ROTARY LUNCH HERE

Clubmen From Nine Puget Sound Clubs Guests of Victorians To-day

Splendid Programmes Given at Biggest Meeting of Kind in Empress Hotel

Forwarding the great sixth objective of Rotary: "The advancement of understanding, goodwill and international peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service," clubmen from nine Puget Sound branches joined Victorians at the biggest international luncheon of its kind ever held in the city at the Empress Hotel to-day.

Arrangements for the function showed forty acceptances for invitations from Bellingham, twenty from Everett, four from Olympia, twenty from Port Angeles, ten from Port Townsend, 100 from Seattle, twenty-five from Sequim, six from Sumner and thirty from Tacoma. In addition approximately 100 Victorians attended the function.

The meeting was a great enlargement of the club's annual inter-city luncheons. Previously Victoria had entertained parties from two or three cities across the state, but the numbers represented to-day far eclipsed those of former years.

Local arrangements for the function were in the hands of the international service committee under Alfred Carmichael, chairman, in the absence of W. F. Pinfold.

Vancouver Bandits Finally Bind Victim and Leave Him With Car

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 18.—Story of a long automobile ramble around Vancouver and its environs with two robbers, who finally left him bound in a shack four miles east of Millardville, was told to police by C. J. Fitzgerald, West Fourteenth Avenue.

Authorities were informed that Fitzgerald, about 6:30 o'clock yesterday evening, borrowed the automobile of Mrs. J. L. Miller, Tudor Manor, Beach.

Conferees Likened To Able Mariners

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—"Contentiously Napoleon called the English a nation of shopkeepers. He was right. They are great traders, as we have been learning these last few days. It was that quality that pulled the United Kingdom through the post-war years and still makes London the world centre." Thus commented a leading statesman of the Dominions on the ebb and flow of the Imperial Conference here.

"And we of the overseas are not such bad traders ourselves," he went on. "That is right and proper because this is a conference of hard-headed business men, not of idealists seeking to create a new empire in a new world."

"To our press men, watching from the shore, it must seem a dull enough voyage, with no breaking out of signal flags or rockets of oratory. But to us aboard the lugger the conference, with its dramatic undercurrents, is thrilling enough, and to get our cargo safe to port is as sound a bit of seamanship as the traders of the seven seas have pulled off for many a year."

Unique Photograph Of Recent Electrical Storm

When the vivid display of aerial pyrotechnics was at its height Monday night, R. S. Towgood, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, took a time exposure of the sky with the above result. The exposure was made about 9 p.m. from the neighborhood of the Phoenix Brewery, the camera facing south. At the left of the picture can be seen two jagged lines of forked lightning, which tore the heavens asunder. The skies to the right were also fully charged with electricity, providing an awesome panorama. Thousands of people here witnessed this and similar displays during the course of the double electrical storm this week.

MOLLISON PLANE OVER ATLANTIC

Australian Pilot's Machine Sighted From Liner Ascania 650 Miles Out on Ireland-New York Round Trip

Canadian Press and Associated Press

London, Aug. 18.—The Cunard liner Ascania to-day reported Pilot J. A. Mollison, flying from Ireland to Newfoundland, passed that vessel at 4 p.m. (8 a.m. Victoria time) to-day at 52.22 north longitude 20.22 west longitude.

He seemed to be going well. There was a light northerly wind, and fine, clear weather.

The position reported by the Ascania is about 650 miles west of Galway, Ireland.

SEEN OVER GALWAY

Galway, Ireland, Aug. 18.—Pilot J. A. Mollison, flying from Port Marnock to Newfoundland and New York, passed over here at 12.45 p.m. (4.45 a.m. Victoria time) to-day.

The plane was only about 220 feet up, going at about 105 miles an hour. The weather was favorable.

TAKE OFF

Port Marnock, Irish Free State, Aug. 18.—Pilot J. A. Mollison, noted Australian distance flier, took off here at 11.35 a.m. (2.35 a.m. Victoria time), on a transatlantic flight to the United States and return.

Mollison, who recently married Amy Johnson, Britain's premier woman distance flier, set new records for flights from England to Australia and from England to Capetown. He had been planning his transatlantic flight since early spring.

He planned to make his first stop at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and after refuelling, to dash on immediately to Roosevelt Field, Long Island. Then his schedule called for a quick turn around and a dash back, without a stop, to Croydon, England.

FIRST EAST-WEST

If Mollison succeeds it will be the first transatlantic solo flight from east to west and the first North Atlantic crossing in a light airplane.

A big crowd assembled on Port Marnock strand to witness the takeoff. The people cheered Mollison when he arrived by plane from the Baldonnel airfield.

KYLSANT, FREE, GOES TO WALES

Former British Ship Company Head Released From Prison To-day

Canadian Press

London, Aug. 18.—Baron Kysant, once the great power behind British shipping interests and chairman of the Royal Mail Line, was released to-day from Wormwood Scrubs Prison, where he had served a sentence of a year for falsification of his company's financial statements.

He was greeted by his wife, who had driven to the prison from her home in London to be on hand when he was released.

GOES TO WALES

Lady Kysant said her husband's first move when he arrived at their home was to lie down for a rest.

"He was very tired," she said, "and of course the heat weighed him. We are grateful for the kindness shown by everybody and we plan to go to Coomb, my old home in Wales, later to-day. I think we shall stay there until fall."

Their daughters and a few close relatives were expected to be at Coomb to greet Lord Kysant. He has a 600-acre estate in Wales.

TOLMIE GIVEN NOISY HEARING

Premier Finds Popularity Waning; Many Interrupt Conference Address

Meeting at the City Temple Widely Split in Attitude Towards Premier

Rounds of "boing" echoing from all parts of the auditorium of the City Temple yesterday evening, competed strongly with the applause with which part of the audience of 1,100 men and women sought to welcome Premier Tolmie on his first public appearance since his return from his long sojourn at Ottawa.

The demonstration against the Premier commenced the instant he entered the hall, accompanied by Rev. Clem Davies, and continued in gusts throughout his progress to the platform. Groups in several sections of the hall took up the noisy chorus and at times their demonstration drowned out the hand-clapping of the majority.

CONTINUOUS DEMONSTRATION

The initial demonstration was only a forerunner of the difficult pathway the Premier was required to tread during his hour of speech-making. Dr. Davies, the chairman, in an effort to provide a lightning rod for the impending storm, in his introduction of the Premier, stressed the fact that the meeting was in no sense a political gathering and that the speaker was a subject of the City Temple and as such entitled to a good hearing in his explanation of the problems before the Imperial Conference.

HARD TRAVELING

The Premier ran into rough water before he had spoken a dozen introductory words. When he commented upon the importance of the Imperial Conference he was greeted with "rot" and similar ejaculations punctuated his

LIFE SAVERS EFFORTS FAIL

Baby Muriel Cronk Drowned Yesterday at Shawnigan Lake; Third Fatality

Special to The Times

Shawnigan Lake, Aug. 18.—Hours of artificial respiration failed to restore life to little Muriel Cronk, who fell in Shawnigan Lake yesterday morning. Efforts to resuscitate the twenty-month-old baby were abandoned after five hours of devoted labor by Mrs. R. W. Hiberson and other volunteers. Oxygen was also used without success.

The child was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cronk, who reside at the lakeside near Shawnigan station. The baby fell into the water shortly before 10:30 o'clock and was rescued after being immersed for only a few minutes.

No inquest will be held and the funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at St. John's Church, Cobble Hill.

The accident has cast gloom over the lake residents, following as it does upon the double tragedy of last week, when Miss Marjorie Gilliland and Wilfred I. Francis were thrown from their boat and drowned.

KILLED BY FALL

Vancouver, Aug. 18.—Injured about the head by a fall down stairs at Dunlevy and Hastings Street on August 9, J. McPhee of West Eighth Avenue, died early this morning in a hospital. He had suffered a fracture of the skull.

Mr. McPhee was removed to his home following the accident, but next morning was conveyed to the hospital when his condition became serious. He did not fully regain his senses after he was admitted to the institution.

POLICE BOARD MEMBER ROBBED

Vancouver, Aug. 18.—With cool efficiency Vancouver's underworld paid its respects to Police Commissioner W. C. Atherton yesterday afternoon, and even now some brazen thief may be clanking in the fine lines of the police administrator.

Wednesday was laundry day at the Atherton home at 3345 Heather Street, and in anticipation of the laundryman's call, a bundle of linen was deposited on the rear veranda of the house.

Before the laundry man arrived a bold sneak thief dropped into the backyard, saw the laundry, and fled with it.

Ratepayers' Group in Vancouver Asks Board If Police Head on Half Time

Commission Requested to State If Attending Races Is Part of Duties

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 18.—Charges that Chief of Police C. E. Edgett spends a good deal of his time at the racetrack, instead of in his office, were made by H. G. A. McLennan, president of the Southland Ratepayers' Association, at a meeting of the federated body yesterday evening.

"It has been brought to my notice that Chief Edgett is attending horse races both in and out of the city instead of looking after police matters at home," stated Mr. McLennan, who is also vice-president of Federated Ratepayers. "It is my opinion a police head receiving the salary of Chief Edgett should give his full time in office instead of looking after his personal interests."

It was decided by the organization to communicate with the police commission and ask if Chief Edgett had mission and ask if Chief Edgett had

Veterans Asked To Meet In Victoria

Penticton Also Bids For 1933
Convention of B.C. Branch of Canadian Legion; Delegates Now Meeting in Revelstoke

Revelstoke, B.C., Aug. 18.—Victoria and Penticton are making bids for the 1933 convention of the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Legion. The Legion, in annual session here, spent this forenoon considering reports presented yesterday afternoon, following the opening ceremonies.

The report of T. A. Barnard of Nanaimo, president of the B.C. command, paid particular attention to certain phases of pension legislation and unemployment, indicating these matters would come large in the deliberations of the convention. A report by Col. W. W. Foster, second vice-president of the Dominion command, reviewed the activities of the Dominion body, also laying stress on pension legislation and emphasizing the efforts of the Dominion command to co-operate with the Federal Government in studying the whole situation. A committee had been appointed, composed of representatives from the Legion and the government, to commence work immediately. It was hoped the result would be the elimination of some of the objectionable features of the present act. Other reports before the meeting were from the secretary, R. G. Macnicoll; on adjustment by David McKee and the honorary treasurer's statement by Col. H. W. Cooper.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN
Committee chairmen were appointed as follows: Unemployment, W. Matthews, New Westminster; pensions and treatment, F. J. Townsend, Vancouver; immigration, G. A. Hooser, Bellingham; Wash.; constitution, laws and clubs, W. G. Stone, New Westminster; tribunals, advocates and war veterans, H. A. Bryant, Fernie; procedure, R. A. Payne, Fort Langley; credentials, George Barclay, Nanaimo; complimentary and selection, G. Boyer, Gulf Islands. Committees went to work immediately on a heavy programme of business.

OPENING ADDRESS
The B.C. command's seventh annual convention was opened yesterday afternoon in the Masonic Hall by President Barnard. The women's auxiliary, also meeting here, attended the official opening. Addresses of welcome were given by Hon. R. W. Bruha, on behalf of the provincial government; W. K. Easing, M.P. for Kootenay West, representing the Federal Government; Dr. W. H. Sutherland, M.P.P. for Revelstoke; Mayor Needham, Capt. James Fitzsimmons, M.P.P. for Kaslo-Blocan, and M. M. Moore, president of the Revelstoke branch of the Legion. Col. W. W. Foster, D.S.O., of Vancouver, brought fraternal greetings from the Dominion command.

Ex-Governor Of Rhode Island Is Fishing Convert

Jasper Park Lodge, Alta., Aug. 18.—Maligne Lake reaped another convert for the brotherhood of anglers during the last few days when ex-Governor R. L. Beekman of Rhode Island, broke par for the newly-opened glacial-fed lake with a full catch three days running which contained not a few three-pound specklers.

With Mrs. Beekman, the former governor went up to Maligne to join their son, Eddie, on the last leg of an eight-day trip. No fisherman, he was nevertheless persuaded to pit a light rod and fly against the lurking trout. The result was he returned to-night with his catch packed in moss.

Are Urged To Avoid Duty Uncertainty

Empire Countries Should Prevent Friction in Customs Administration, Says Ottawa Conference Committee

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—While dumping duties and fixing of valuation for duty purposes find no specific mention in the report of the Imperial Conference committee on customs and administration, steps for "reduction of friction and delay to a minimum" are recommended.

The report's recommendations are general in their nature, but emphasize the importance of avoiding uncertainty as to the amount of duty payable on the arrival of goods. The position taken by the Canadian Government in fixing values for duty purposes in order to avoid dumping had been the subject of criticism.

The report is brief. It agrees "that any measures which the administration of the various Empire countries may take shall be consistent with the principles of reducing friction and delay."

"Expedient and effective settlement of disputes relating to all matters affecting customs administration" is recommended.

The report was approved yesterday by delegation heads.

SENTENCE GIVEN ONTARIO SOLDIER

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 18.—Private G. D. Donner, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, whose disappearance for twelve hours with car No. 4 of the Imperial Conference fleet here, provided a mystery until his apprehension in Montreal, yesterday received his sentence, appearing in city court, he was given twenty-eight days' detention, to be served in the barracks at Kingston, Ont.

Detained as chauffeur to Hon. M. C. Havens, Minister of Finance of the Union of South Africa, Donner failed to appear for the conference delegate at Lucerne, Que., where he had taken him last Saturday. Mr. Havens had to travel back to the capital in a taxi, while police sought the missing chauffeur.

Hoover's Liquor Attitude Criticized

Associated Press
Geneva, Aug. 18.—President Hoover was charged to-day by Bishop James Monahan of the United States Southern Methodist Episcopal Church, with having surrendered "to the speak-easies, bootleggers and nullifiers of the constitution" in his recent nomination acceptance speech.

"The outstanding, indeed the overshadowing, part of Mr. Hoover's prohibition statement," he said in his criticism, which ran to considerable length, "is the startling declaration by the President of the United States of the helplessness of his administration in its efforts to control what Hoover denominated the 'intolerable speak-easies and bootlegging' and to prevent 'practical nullification of the constitution.'"

"But is not the President himself helpless as he now so suddenly declares in the very face of that most significant and encouraging official statement recently submitted to Congress that consumption of intoxicants had diminished over 60 per cent since 1914?"

OTTAWA FACES BIG DEFICIT

Despite New Taxes Dominion Revenue Declines, While Expenditures Increase
Rhodes $4,300,000 Surplus Prediction Looks Sick; Deficit Looming

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Unless very drastic steps are taken to curtail the expenditures of the Dominion government a serious deficit will be faced by the country for the current fiscal year. The Financial Post states. This is apparent from the revenue figures for the first three months of the present year, now being released.

When Hon. E. N. Rhodes presented his budget speech to the House of Commons on April 6 last he forecast a surplus on current account of $4,300,000.

Since he had just reported a deficit on current account of $4,000,000 for the year that had just closed and as governmental revenues were continuing to decline he proposed to obtain this surplus in two ways:

1. By reducing current expenditures by $8,000,000 and $10,000,000.
2. By imposing a vast schedule of new taxes designed to bring in $55,000,000 of new revenue.

The new taxes are in effect and the public have been paying them. They have paid higher sales and income tax; 3 or 6 cents instead of 2 cents on every cigarette; taxes on sleeping car tickets and telephone conversations, etc. But the government's financial position has failed to respond to the drastic treatment administered the taxpayers. The new taxes were collected enough but the economy was not even present in the abstract. During the first three months of the fiscal year, ended June 30 last, revenues declined and expenditures increased.

BIG DECLINE IN CUSTOMS DUTIES
Total current revenues amounted to $105,000,000, just $2,000,000 below the figure for the same months of 1931. The big decline was in customs duties, down from $22,000,000 to $21,000,000, and in excise taxes, down from $13,000,000 to $10,000,000. Income tax brought in almost as much, although stamp and other excise taxes jumped from under $8,000,000 to about $18,000,000.

SURPLUS EXPECTED IN TAX PERIOD
Expenditures climbed. Current expenditures for the first three months of last year were $84,000,000; this year, $89,500,000. Increase of $5,500,000. In part to a shifting of interest dates but mainly to a larger public debt. Total expenditures, current, capital, unemployment relief, etc., apart from recoverable advances, totaled $112,000,000. Thus the government went behind—that is to say the national debt increased by $7,000,000 during the period when large income tax payments should have been piling up a surplus for leaner months. Last year the surplus during the period was $18,000,000. Thus the government's financial results for the first quarter were just $25,000,000 worse than they were a year ago.

SURPLUS FORECAST WILTS
Mr. Rhodes forecast a surplus of $4,300,000. He admitted that this would be before allowing for unemployment relief expenditures and C.N.R. financing. On the same basis as his estimate he ended the first quarter of his year with a surplus of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. Last year at the same time his surplus, on current account, was $23,000,000. Yet he ended the year with a deficit on current account of $4,000,000.

It is obvious that the country is headed for another very large deficit on current account to which will have to be added the additional deficits on account of unemployment relief, the possible loss of anything up to $15,000,000 on wheat pool bank loan guarantees, the deficits on the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and further non-productive loans to harbor boards, etc.

REAL DEFICIT NEAR $100,000,000
When the Minister of Finance estimated that the government's surplus on current account would this year reach $4,300,000, the Finance Minister expressed the opinion that the true deficit would reach at least $64,000,000. Present indications are that it may run closer to $100,000,000.

The government has adopted a new style for issuing its financial statements. The figures are published one month later than formerly; they provide no comparisons with previous year's figures; and the usual statement on the country's national debt is entirely missing.

HIDES DEBT STATEMENT
The suspicion is strong that the debt statement is misleading because Ottawa does not want the country to know how badly it is running behind due to the failure to bring governmental expenditures in line with the lower government revenues.

Premier Expects Island to Benefit Greatly From Imperial Conference

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 18.—The Newfoundland delegates to the Imperial Economic Conference are satisfied their country will benefit greatly from the deliberations now drawing to a close, according to Hon. F. C. Alderdice, recently elected Premier of the island.

The Newfoundland Premier, one of the speakers at a civic luncheon rendered in honor of the conference delegates yesterday, frankly declared that "this conference cannot fail."

Speaking for Newfoundland, Mr. Alderdice said he was satisfied agreements reached at the conference would widen the markets for that country and help to relieve unemployment.

Newfoundland's great industry being its fisheries, this was taken to indicate reports of preferences for fishery products were well founded.

ACQUITTED MAN IS HUNTING JOB

At Miami Pilot W. N. Lancaster Says His Plans Not Yet Clear

Miami, Fla., Aug. 18.—Capt. W. N. Lancaster, British aviator acquitted yesterday of a charge of murder following the crash of his plane near Havana, Cuba, a young United States writer, rested at the home of his attorney to-day before starting to hunt a job.

He was without definite plans for the future, he said, and declined to discuss what attitude he would adopt toward Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, an Australian flying companion, whose affections Clarke won from him.

Mrs. Keith-Miller was delighted with the verdict. "I knew old Bill would come through," she said.

WARRANT NOT SERVED
A United States deportation warrant issued against Capt. Lancaster a month ago was not served on him yesterday as he had been expected.

Federal agents had been holding the warrant here pending the close of Lancaster's trial.

Hearing on a deportation warrant served on Mrs. Keith-Miller some time ago was scheduled for to-day, but was indefinitely postponed.

It was understood Pilot Lancaster would be allowed a few days' seclusion to think over his plans and decide whether he means to remain in this country.

DEMONSTRATION IN COURT
The jury's verdict yesterday afternoon precipitated a courtroom demonstration that for a time threatened to go beyond the control of the bailiffs.

The twelve-man jury had deliberated four hours and forty-eight minutes before acquitting Lancaster on one complete ballot. The fier had been on trial since August 2 in one of the most sensational hearings in the history of South Florida.

Fashionably-gowned women wept and shrieked with delight as E. E. Leatherman, clerk of Circuit Court, read aloud the jury's verdict of "not guilty."

Near-panemum followed, with bailiffs, deputies, the sheriff and police vainly striving to control the crowd that surged toward the freed man in an effort to grasp his hand.

One portly matron, who had been an interested front-row spectator since the start of the hearing, August 2, moaned aloud as she sank back in her chair, gasping with delight. It was learned later she did not know Lancaster.

THANKED JURORS
In the midst of the uproar, death-like stillness descended as Lancaster, nervously clasping and unclasping his hands, stepped forward before the jurors, still in their box.

"Gentlemen," he said, "you have been very patient with my case. You have had to listen during the long trial of the case to many things.

"I want to give you my heartfelt thanks for exonerating me."

He clicked his heels as in salute, bowed briskly and stepped away from the front of the jury box. He tried to resume the chair he had occupied since the start of the trial, but was prevented by the renewed mad surge of spectators.

"I am delighted at my acquittal," he said to newspapermen as they attempted to talk to him above the roar of the crowd.

Mrs. Keith-Miller, third figure in the strange trial, was not in the courtroom when the verdict was read, but quickly heard it in adjoining office.

NO STATEMENTS
Dr. Beverly Clarke of New York, brother of the late Haden Clarke, was in the courtroom at the verdict, but would make no comment.

Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke, mother of the late writer, was in the room before the case went to the jury, but was not there when the verdict was read.

Clarke was shot to death the night of April 21 in the room he and Lancaster occupied together in Mrs. Keith-Miller's home.

The shooting took place less than twelve hours after Lancaster had returned to Miami by plane from St. Louis, Mo., on learning Clarke and Mrs. Keith-Miller planned to marry.

Lancaster confessed to State Attorney H. Vernon Hawthorne that he had forged two suicide notes found in the room where Clarke was shot. He maintained Clarke had killed himself.

Canadian mining production last year included nearly 2,000,000 tons of ore, a mineral which has many uses besides the making of toilet preparations as it enters into paper-making and the manufacture of paints, cements, rubber, textiles, lubricants and various other products.

DEBUNKING POCKET IMPERIALISTS

WHETHER THE ECONOMIC CONFERENCE at Ottawa will realize all the hopes that were propagated for it or not in its effect upon trade and industry, it is shedding enlightenment upon certain intriguing phenomena in Canada's party politics which, for a time at least, ought to prove of value. For example, it is debunking the super-imperialism of some of our most fervent imperialists in election times. It is putting a proper appraisal upon the motives of a considerable number of people who, when the Liberals were in power at Ottawa, waved the flag, sang Rule Britannia and charged the government with high treason. It is proving that their fine protestations and dihyrambic antics of superior patriotism were merely so much "sound and fury signifying nothing," a lot of shallow humbug.

The Montreal Star and The Montreal Gazette, two leading Conservative newspapers in the East, invariably have been the song leaders of this precious brigade. They are now singing a different tune. For some weeks they have been criticizing Mr. Bennett's reported concessions to Great Britain on the ground that they imperil Canadian industry. They demand that there shall be no abatement of the policy of protection even for the sake of imperial solidarity. They object to the reduction of Canada's customs duties which, as far as British imports are concerned, in many respects are much higher than the duties imposed by the United States.

Mr. Baldwin's proposal that preference to British goods should be in the form of a reduction of duties—now prohibitive—rather than in an increase of the charges against foreign products arouses the imagination to their theory, imperialism is all right—in its place—if it costs nothing, and is used on the political stump. But it must involve no sacrifice as far as Canada is concerned; the fires on their particular altar of imperialism must be kept going on bunk, after-dinner platitudes and "windy aspirations of forced breath," but nothing more substantial.

To what extent the pressure exercised by these pocket, election-time imperialists has influenced the attitude of the Canadian government a few days will disclose. It seems to have been sufficient so far to have restricted Canada's proposals to a point in contrast with which the offer of Mackenzie King's government in the Dunning budget—rejected by the Canadian people—a proposal to which no strings were attached and which was unaccompanied by any haggling, was the height of empire co-operation. It may be that The Montreal Star and The Montreal Gazette voice the sentiment of the majority of the Canadian electorate—the election of 1930 suggests that they do—but if that be the case, common decency requires that there should be an end to flag-waving at election time by those who now insist upon the maintenance of prohibitive tariffs against British goods and whose only conception of a satisfactory agreement with Great Britain is one that would benefit Canada and ruin the older Dominion.

BOURASSA OF LE DEVOIR

FROM THE ACTIVE DIRECTION OF LE Devoir, one of the best-known of French-Canadian newspapers, Henri Bourassa, M.P., has retired because of ill-health and journals of all shades of political thought are agreed that journalism in this country will note with regret the gap he will leave. Although he is in his sixty-fourth year, it is hoped that relief from the daily grind will enable him to regain his strength and remain in public life.

Henri Bourassa, who interested a Victoria audience in an address a few years ago, often described himself as the leader of a party of one—the Independent party—and in that capacity he has felt free at all times to direct his eloquence and wit, either in condemnation or approval, at any other member, leader or rank and file. Every time he joins in debate he thoroughly enjoys himself; but personal conviction lies behind his utterances. His information on Canadian and world questions is almost unlimited and he is always listened to with close attention, although not always with approval. More people disagree with him than otherwise; but on every occasion when in the last thirty-six years he has asked his constituents in the riding of Labelle to send him back to the House of Commons they have done so with enthusiasm; he has become a tradition to his followers there.

Toronto Saturday Night, paying tribute to the picturesqueness of his personality and the pungency of his speech and writing, says of him in part: "An aristocrat by temperament, it is probable that if any large number of people had agreed with Mr. Bourassa on a given issue, serious doubts would have arisen in his own mind as to whether he was right after all. There is this to be said for Le Devoir, that in point of literary workmanship it has been the best of French-Canadian publications. From the outset it has made an appeal to the scholarly members of its own race; and during his long regime as editor he gathered about him the best talent among the younger French-Canadian writers. . . . Even when his speeches in the House have exasperated listeners, his critics could not but admit their elegant and colorful qualities—too rare in Canadian parliamentary routine."

WHAT TWELVE YEARS SHOW

ONE OF THE CORRESPONDENTS AT Ottawa tells us that without effective control of Russian imports, Dominion trade relations with the United Kingdom would be rendered nugatory—and he says the Dominions are standing firm for control of Russia.

For the sake of British Columbia's lumber industry alone, we hope the United Kingdom delegation may yet be persuaded to curtail British purchases of Russian timber and divert more business to this country. The prospect, however, does not appear very bright. A dispatch from London this morning, for instance, says cables from its deputation at Ottawa "informed the Timber Trade Federation of the United Kingdom to-day that no definite decisions have yet been reached with other timber interests," that "negotiations, necessarily of a confidential character, are still proceeding." This means the British lobby has been effective so far.

The Canadian delegates and the United Kingdom delegates obviously are finding this question of Russian timber and other Soviet products one of the most difficult problems to solve. It is to be hoped the people of this province are not expecting too much to emerge from the discussions now going on between them, for Mr. Baldwin and his colleagues no doubt have taken the stand that unless Canada reduces her tariff against British goods, they have a poor case to present to the British Parliament in this demand that Russia be controlled, whatever that may mean.

No Canadian desires to see a single Canadian industry imperilled by outside competition which it would find difficult to meet without wage cutting and the reduction of living standards. But until we know what Canada has really offered Great Britain in return for a much bigger share of the business which Russia is now doing with the United Kingdom, it is not easy to view the question in proper perspective.

It is not unnatural, of course, that the British delegates should present figures to the Canadian delegates to show whether Canada or the United Kingdom has been getting the better of the existing trade exchange. Take the aggregate value of Canadian imports from the United Kingdom for the years 1920-1931 inclusive and Canadian exports to the United Kingdom for the same period. It shows imports worth $1,880,000,000 and exports worth $4,454,000,000, or a balance in this country's favor of no less than $2,477,000,000. For the twelve months ending last June the import figures were $97,077,549 and the exports stood at $164,217,921, a balance in Canada's favor of $67,140,372 in one of the smallest annual exchanges for many years. In 1929 our imports amounted in value to $194,041,381 and our exports $429,730,485. To all intents and purposes, however, the percentage of balance in Canada's favor has varied very little, just as the percentage of the adverse balance in our trade with the United States has varied very little.

In hoping that Canada will be successful in her plea for more of Britain's business, we must not be surprised if the British delegates, with this twelve-year balance of $2,477,000,000 in our favor in mind, should ask the Canadian delegates if they have very much to grumble about. But even if no specific agreement shall be reached, our trade with the United Kingdom will still continue with considerable advantage to this country; and the fact remains that it will increase if Mr. Bennett will lower the tariff against British goods. In that event, we would buy more, but we would sell more, too. That is axiomatic.

"CATCH-AS-CATCH-CAN" ANNOUNCERS

ONE OF THE HUMOROUS SPORTS writers in the United States recently gave a name to some of his compatriots who tell millions of people about the virtues of this and that; he called them "catch-as-catch-can" radio announcers because they often get tangled up in their enunciation and in their English generally. Now comes The Literary Digest with the suggestion that before winding themselves up for the microphone, announcers might profitably heed the advice on spoken English now given by Sir Frank Benson, the veteran British actor, in The Manchester Guardian. Here is the gist of his message:

On the variety and euphony of vowel tones, together with the articulation and framing of the consonants, depends the charm of speech and the music and meaning of poetry.

The right use in daily speech of vowels and consonants, involving as it does due exercise of the nose, mouth, teeth, throat, and the lungs, movement and gesture of the whole body, contributes in no small measure to our health.

To discuss fully the subject of elocution would require a volume; sufficient for the would-be clear speaker will be a few simple precepts:

1. Take breath whenever you can, as in swimming or running, using the whole breathing apparatus nature has given you.
2. Learn to control the intake and output of breath.
3. Do not stiffen your muscles; "use all gently"; exercise lips, teeth, jaws, and throat in dental, labial, and guttural sounds; open your mouth. Never listen to the sound of your own voice; a golden maxim.

Many of the more prominent British actors graduated through the Benson school of experience. Sir Frank was merciless with "accents" that completely murdered English. Woe betide the budding Thespian who had the "Peta's-waive-lay-sick-with-the-fewah" affectation!

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

BRITISH MONEY COMES TO CANADA

The Regina Star

Alberta is the latest province to leave the United States loan market alone and to turn to Great Britain. It has recently negotiated an issue in London for the amount of one million pounds sterling, which was obtained without any difficulty, and at a lower cost than would have been incurred in obtaining United States money. It is gratifying to know that more British capital is coming into the Dominion. We have been too long dependent on Wall Street for loans, and as there is plenty of money available in the Old Country for legitimate investment, there is no reason why the British market should be neglected any longer.

COME, FARMER, GO BUY

The Chicago Post

The prices of livestock continue to work to higher levels, and with them the hope of a moderate improvement in business this autumn. That that hope has some possibility of fulfillment is shown by the observation of a Wisconsin realty operator, familiar with conditions in the dairying areas of that state.

He knew, he said, of three farms with antiquated and outworn cream separators. In each case the farmer was coaxing the antiquated machines to function a few months longer, although he possessed the funds for replacement. Each was deliberately carrying on a buy-strike against all purchases of city-manufactured goods "until either their prices come down on a level with ours or we get more money for our products."

Loose Ends

About a good old Victorian custom, which reckless men are trying to obliterate—about a strange and beautiful thing across the Bay—where things would have to be strange to be beautiful—and about a disgusting episode at the lake.

By H. B. W.

ONE OF THOSE gentlemen who help to make Victoria a recognized centre of intellectual things, writes to the papers to deplore the worldly gossip and scandal-mongering which also distinguish our community. His view that there is more gossiping here than in any other city he knows is accurate in one sense, but quite wrong in another, because while Victoria gossips more than other places it isn't a city at all. It is a town, thank heaven, and it is the ancient and sacred prerogative of towns to gossip as much as they please. In cities the unhappy people are so separated from one another by their very numbers, and there are so many cross-currents, so many other things to think about, that the inhabitants have no real opportunity for the good old human habit of discussing the neighbors. That, indeed, is the chief disadvantage of life in a city.

GENTLEMEN who write to the newspapers should beware how they destroy the innocent pleasures and old privileges of our townspeople, how they interfere with the folklore of the village. As a matter of fact, Victoria has done remarkably well with the pitifully small share of gossip and scandal which has come its way. When you see what oceans of talk have been distilled out of the few dry and blameless facts of Victorian life, you realize what splendid progress the old household art of gossip has achieved here. Of course, natural conditions are favorable to the development of this form of culture. We enjoy here a large class of people who have little to do but talk about other people and they have learned, by long experience, to do it with a finesse and thoroughness which larger places, busy with the foolish affairs of the world, can never hope to equal. Why, then, deprive us of these harmless rustic delights? They will disappear soon enough as we become a city and other more mundane matters occupy our minds. Let us enjoy these jolly human things while we may, before we grow up. What we really need just now is not less gossip but something more to gossip about. What we need is a real scandal, for we have been living patiently and coddled on old bones of gossip bare these many years. What I am hoping is that somebody will really do something really wicked, something worth talking about one of these days while Victoria is still young enough and rustic enough to appreciate it.

I WAS OVER at the Parliament building the other day to have a private look at the political crisis there, but I saw nothing more intriguing than the Kidd co-mittee arriving from Vancouver in a trim-looking private yacht to urge the government to cut everybody's salary. (This was fairly intriguing, however, to a person of imagination.) Nor did the face of the premier seem to indicate that he was aware of any crisis, but I suppose a premier would be the last to hear of it. It would be curious if the crisis passed without the patient being aware of his illness. But there is something much more interesting and, in the long run, much more important, under way at the Buildings just now. An able artist and a complete philosopher is painting murals in the circular chamber under the great dome.

I AM NOT GOING to advise you to watch Mr. Southwell at work on his murals, for fear that great crowds, who always listen to his advice, might surge over there and bother him. But if one or two of you wanted to drop over now and then, at decent intervals, you may learn a lot. Mr. Southwell is painting four huge panels in the dome room in a bold, vigorous style which should be viewed at a distance.

has escaped deterioration in any of those particulars, which, according to an enlightened electorate, cannot be said of all the parliamentary inhabitants. I am glad Mr. Howe has financed the cost of painting the four bare panels in the dome room. I wish some other public-spirited man would pay for the painting of a lot of other panels over there. In the Buildings are many bare, barren and lifeless things which need to be painted completely over and forever hidden. The electorate might imagine that some of these things were not entirely lifeless either. But almost.

THE LITTLE girl from next door came over here just now with an evil look in her eye and some large object in her mouth which she was chewing with a noisy click. "You know what I got in my mouth?" she asked. "Well, don't tell my mummy, but it's gum and it's real and truly gum in my mouth also. You know where I got that gum? Well, my mummy, she won't let me have gum 'cause she says it's not nice for little girls but that's silly. So to-day I traded my old red ball to Mickey for a piece of his gum. His gum was old and it had been chewed up quite a bit, but my ball it was old, too, so it was a good trading. And after a while I gave Pete a big yellow apple for a piece of his gum. What hadn't got the flavor chewed out of it yet and when I chewed it up with the old gum, Holy Moses! but it tasted keen! But don't tell my mummy 'cause she wouldn't like it 'cause she is getting oldish. Oldish peoples don't like gum, I guess." "Well, I said, 'I suppose there is no use lecturing you on sanitation and hygiene but if you overbalance on the railing there you'll probably break your neck, which would be more immediate than the results of indiscriminate gum.'" "No, I won't," she said, still chewing vigorously. "I've never broken my neck yet, not even once."

of some yards. If ignorant people insist on thrusting their noses into his work and supposing that some of it is rough, he can't help it. So far as is one picture about half complete, a compact, teeny composition of Indians trading with the first white visitors to these shores and I think it is going to be a great success. But what interests me more than Mr. Southwell's pictures is Mr. Southwell.

HE HAS ONLY one object in life—to paint. For forty years or so he has painted regularly seven or eight hours a day and he goes at it as hard as he can. He is a provincial government. Watch him as he sweeps his colors on as roughly as if he were whitewashing a henhouse, but note how his touch is always sure, his line strong and even. Watch him sweep a rag across the wall and then observe the exquisite modeling and the splendid highlights which result. See how carefully he lathers his paints together and yet how his colors are always right.

MR. SOUTHWELL says that temperament is all nonsense anyway, that painting is as much his ordinary day's work as running a government is the premier's. He says that a man's painting should improve every year until he dies unless he deteriorates, physically, mentally or morally. I am happy and a little surprised to be able to say that after months of work of one sort and another over at the Parliament Buildings, Mr. Southwell

GYPSIES RETURN, SEE PROSPERITY

Fort Smith, Ark., Aug. 18.—If you are looking for prosperity, follow the gypsy tribes that roam the world. For, guided by some instinct that seems almost uncanny, gypsies seem to know where money is being made and go there. It seldom has failed. Shortly before the arrival of depression in North America in the fall of 1929, lots of them seemed to sense that bad times were coming and departed for other lands. Now which appears a hopeful sign—they are coming back.

Take all this from Mrs. W. H. Cole, who, with her husband, operates a drug store in Fort Smith. That drug store is at the crossroads of all the Romany trails in the world, for through it the wandering tribes communicate with each other. How, you may ask, Mrs. Cole has been their unofficial "postmistress," forwarding letters and telegrams to and from all parts of the globe and maintaining communication with the scattered bands.

"They are coming back now," says Mrs. Cole. "I've been getting letters from South America, Australia, Europe and South Africa which indicate lots of them are planning an early return to North America. It seems like a good omen for the return of prosperity; gypsies always seem to know where money is being made."

The case of Miller Costello is typical. Miller is the father of Steve Costello, a famous gypsy tribes in America. He left in the summer of 1929—at a time when most probably thought prosperity was here to stay. When the crash came here, Miller Costello was in Brazil. He wrote Mrs. Cole that business there was "very good." This continued for several months. Then his letters told her that business had fallen off, that he had traveled for many days through a mountain range—with only one horse—in search of richer fields.

Recently, Miller Costello wrote another letter, quaintly addressed to "Mrs. Cole, care of Cole Drug Store, Futzmitt, Ark., Estador Unidos da America do Norte." It requested her to forward his mail to another city, more than a thousand miles away, and informed her that he was on the slow trail back to the United States.

From Johannesburg, South Africa, Mrs. Cole received a letter recently from the Yana band of Russian gypsies. They are coming back, too. So are many other bands of these restless nomads.

How, you may ask, does it happen that a woman running a drug store in Fort Smith, Ark., is in touch with these wanderers of the Romany trail who communicate with each other through her?

Fifteen years ago, Steve Costello, feeling the need of a central point of communication between members of the tribe, asked Mrs. Cole if she would forward messages to other gypsies if sent to her. She agreed.

News of this arrangement spread throughout the tented camps from Maine to California, and soon other tribes were depending on her for communication.

The gypsies know Mrs. Cole and trust her with many important services. In 1923, for instance, she was appointed administratrix for the estate of Yonko Ulrich, aged king of the Russian gypsies. She handled Yonko's $80,000 estate, of which $50,000 was in cash. Every heir was satisfied.

CONFERENCE UNDER REVIEW

Ottawa Proceedings Described By Premier Tolmie at City Temple

Prolonged Absence in Federal Capital Ascribed to Provincial Affairs

A hopeful note, tinged with expectation that no major success would be announced at the conclusion of the Imperial Conference at Ottawa, marked the address given by Premier Tolmie yesterday evening before an audience of 1,100 men and women at the City Temple. The address occupied exactly one hour, during which the Premier consistently ignored a persistent barrage of heckling. Dr. Clem Davies acted as chairman.

"We have had rather an interesting time at Ottawa in connection with the Imperial Conference, the most important event, we will all agree, in the recent history of the empire," said Dr. Tolmie, recalling the succession of conferences in London which had preceded the Ottawa sessions. He considered the holding of the proceedings at Ottawa to be evidence of recognition of the importance of the Dominions. The Premier mentioned many of the eminent personalities attending the conference from all parts of the empire, remarking that, in view of the distinguished representation, it was impossible to expect any other outcome than success. "The outcome could be of the greatest importance to the restoration of prosperity within the empire," he was saying, when increasing interruptions from the floor caused Dr. Davies to intervene as chairman with a denunciation of such interruptions. "The cause of radicalism is not aided by denying free speech and I am going to see Premier Tolmie receives the courtesy which is his due," the chairman protested. Turning to the Premier he said, "The City Temple, sir, is not responsible for this un-British and cowardly demonstration by a few extreme radicals."

VITAL TO PROVINCE

Dr. Tolmie resumed his address with a brief review of the importance of the conference to British Columbia. It was essential to the province and its 200,000 people that new opportunities be made to export its resources.

"I have been criticised for staying in Ottawa longer than some thought necessary. I was not the only provincial premier there, several were in Ottawa two or three times. That shows the importance attached to the proceedings by other provinces. I was not there primarily for the conference, I had important provincial business, such as our unemployment problem. I was there also for our lumbering industry for if we can obtain export markets and get the wheels in our mills turning we can get 40,000 men back to work in that industry alone. That is certainly the best way of dealing with unemployment."

"Our American friends have cut off a large part of our market by imposition of a $3 tariff on lumber. We needed a subsidy on shipping carrying export lumber cargo. The lumber men went to Ottawa and presented an excellent brief to the cabinet. The following day the government announced that tenders would be called for the service we had asked for."

"It was much cheaper to provide that subsidy than to care for men who would otherwise be unemployed. It is a most practical solution of the unemployment problem to enable industry to put them to work. You can rest assured that the government is as anxious as the unemployed themselves to find work for men," he stated.

Dr. Tolmie told of the problem involved in disposing of third-grade lumber, which comprised a large portion of the output of sawmills.

TRADE EXCHANGE

The timber men were not seeking to secure a larger share of the British lumber trade for nothing and they had shown that, if empire markets for their output were secured, the lumber industry of British Columbia would be able to purchase trucks, cables and other British manufactures worth $15,000,000 annually.

TRADE BALANCES

Trade balances had a very important bearing upon the proceedings of the conference. The delegates were aware of business and political minds, all seeking to benefit their own countries. The Premier gave statistics showing that great room existed for development of an increased empire market for timber by reciprocal trade exchanges.

He told of Canada's effort to secure a British preference for copper, production of which involved employment of 3,000 men in British Columbia.

The fishery industry was also interested in securing an increased proportion of British imports, which had been severely reduced by Russian competition.

British Columbia would have nearly 4,000,000 boxes of apples for disposal this year. Half of the crop was expected to be sold in domestic centres and it was hoped that Great Britain would take 1,750,000 boxes.

LOGAN GROWERS AIDED

The loganberry trade had already benefited from his activity at Ottawa. Possibility that dehydrated berries from Oregon might undersell British Columbia fruit in prairie centres having been brought by him to the attention of the federal government, a valuation of 28 cents a pound for duty purposes had been assigned. Dr. Tolmie believed the British market for canned loganberries and strawberries preserved with sulphur dioxide could be largely developed.

TOURIST TRAFFIC

The value of the tourist traffic was touched upon, the Premier being of opinion that development of this industry would greatly increase employment. He found that all the delegates at Ottawa had been keenly alive to the advantage of diverting to British shipping and railways all possible passenger and freight traffic. He believed that encouragement of intra-empire travel would become a great factor in increasing good feeling between the various parts of the Empire. The Premier did not believe that building up trade within the Empire would be reflected in losses of trade with other countries. "This policy will have the effect of bringing certain countries sharply to their senses," he commented.

HOPE FOR IMPETUS

"It is hard to foretell the outcome of the conference, but we hope that the trade of Canada will receive a great impetus," he said, recalling that the Canada-Australia trade treaty had increased Canada's share of Pacific northwest lumber exports to Australia from 20 per cent to 98 per cent.

He recalled that while the outlook for betterment was hopeful, the prospect was for a slow recovery rather than any sudden change. He recalled that previous depressions had been marked by gloomy forecasts which had proved wrong, and he believed that improvement of trade such as the conference was expected to produce would be followed by economic recovery in the basic industries of Canada. He then read the message addressed to the conference by King George, this being greeted with applause. In conclusion the Premier read telegram from Ottawa which stated that good progress was being made in negotiations with Britain regarding fish, fruit and other products, but that nothing definite could be reported regarding lumber preferences.

B.C. FINANCES NEW YORK LOAN

$2,000,000 Provincial Issue Is Well Received; Exchange Works For Low Rate

New York, Aug. 18.—First public financing of Canadian origin to be done in the United States capital market in nearly a year, has been arranged for the Province of British Columbia, says The New York Herald-Tribune in its financial columns today.

Investment bankers of New York and Chicago, says The Herald-Tribune, have purchased at $105 in Canadian funds, a new issue of $2,000,000 two-year 5 per cent debentures of the province, of which principal and interest are payable in United States gold.

Owing to the current discount of 10 per cent on Canadian funds the bankers are able to reoffer these bonds publicly at a United States dollar price of 95, to yield the investor about 7 per cent to maturity. The preliminary offering yesterday aroused considerable interest and it is indicated that more than half the issue has already been placed. These bonds are dated August 15, 1932, and they mature August 15, 1934. Proceeds will be used by the province to refund existing short-term debt. The Herald-Tribune says:

Canadian financing of a public nature was terminated abruptly in this market by the suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain last September and the drop in Canadian exchange which followed. Its resumption at this time reflects not only the general return of confidence among investors, but also an apparent expectation on the part of the British Columbia officials that Canadian exchange will return to parity with the United States dollar within two years. Financial experts have long maintained that restoration of parity depends on the close trade and financial relations of the Dominion with the United States.

In the event that exchange parity is restored in the two-year period, this loan will represent exceedingly low cost borrowing by the provincial authorities. The premium of 5 1/2 per cent now paid in Canadian funds will mean, in that case, that the net cost to the province will be only about 1 1/2 per cent per annum. The transaction also accords with differences between the Canadian and United States capital markets. Whereas short-term paper of this character is much in demand in the United States, little inquiry exists for it in Canada, where long-term bonds are preferred.

The annual meeting of the Tuberculosis Veterans branch of the Canadian Legion was advanced to September 20 on the advice of the executive committee yesterday evening. The meeting was put forward to the later date as it was thought that it would insure better distribution of the year's work.

BAMFORD TAKES HIGH AGGREGATE

Victoria Detective Shoots Consistently in Revolver Meet Here

Detective Calwell Wins Mayor's Prize; R.C.M.P. Officer Gets Individual Honors

Continuing their fine shooting throughout the afternoon, Detectives T. Harvey Bamford and Walter Calwell of the city detective department and Constable Christine of the R.C.M.P., scooped away the major honors in the Victoria Police Department's revolver shoot at the Esquimalt Range yesterday.

The Victoria detectives were members of the team winning the knockout competition, after they had helped their squad to win the regulation team shoot.

Detective Calwell shot a fine 37 to win the Mayor's trophy in a shoot confined to the city police with Detective Bamford second.

Scoring consistently over the thirty mark, Detective Bamford took the lead in the grand aggregate with 203 which gave him a close margin over Detective Calwell's 200 total.

Although the Victoria police won both team competitions, two of the individual championships were won by members of other forces. Constable Christine, crack shot of the R.C.M.P., turned in a nice 38 to win the Vancouver Island championship. Detective Bamford winning second place after a shoot-off with Constable Harry Mercer.

WINS SNAP SHOOTING

A. H. Baker of the Royal Canadian Navy, won the snap-shooting contest with 26 out of 30. This competition was a severe test, the target being exposed for only two seconds at a time.

The shoot was one of the most successful in local police annals, more than one hundred marksmen competing. The standard of shooting was high and competition so close that shoot-offs were necessary to decide several awards.

HIGHEST CARDS

The two highest cards of the day in target shooting were registered by Detective Calwell with a 43 and Constable Maurice Wilkinson with a 42 both in the regular team shoot.

All the events were run off smoothly, due to the capable arrangements of the committee in charge, which consisted of Sergeant Thomas Hall, Inspector John T. Boulton and Detective W. Stark. Major K. J. G. Rycroft and Major H. M. Reynolds were the referees.

Following are additional results: Knockout competition—First team, Detectives Stark, Bamford and Calwell; second team, Detective Jarvis, Constable Roy Woolsey and Constable Belcher, all of the City Police; third team, Constables Reston, Clayards and Douglas, all of Oak Bay.

Snap Shooting—1. A. H. Baker, R.C.N.; 2. Constable Woods, Oak Bay; 21. 3. Constable Clayards, 19.

Left-hand Shoot—1. Constable Roy Woolsey, 39; 2. Detective Rogers, 34; 3. Detective Calwell and Bamford, 30 (tie).

Vancouver Island Police Championship—1. Constable Christine, R.C.M.P.; 38; 2. Detective Bamford, 37; 3. Constable Reston, 36. The latter two shot for position in a shoot-off.

City police (individual)—1. Detective Calwell, 37; 2. Detective Bamford, 32; 3. Detective Stark, 26.

Civil Staff, Esquimalt Navy Yard—1. G. A. Neal, 35; 2. G. Phillips, 33; 3. H. Smith, 28.

Grand aggregate—Detective Bamford, 203; Detective Calwell, 200.

NAME OFFICER FOR ESQUIMALT

To fill the vacancy in the Esquimalt police force, the commissioners of the appointed Edward Harold Sweeney, 497 Head Street, as constable.

Mr. Sweeney, a resident of the district for twenty years, a property owner and returned soldier, was selected from a list of about fifty applicants after the respective merits of the different men had been considered. He will act as constable for a probationary period of six months at a salary of $110 a month.

Mr. Sweeney appeared before the commission personally before the final selection was made.

During the meeting the July report of Chief of Police H. W. V. Rocknold was submitted. It showed fines and tax collections for the month to have reached a total of $204. About 120 1/2 per cent per annum. The transaction also accords with differences between the Canadian and United States capital markets. Whereas short-term paper of this character is much in demand in the United States, little inquiry exists for it in Canada, where long-term bonds are preferred.

BUTTER REACHES 20c IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Butter climbed to the 20c per pound level on the Montreal wholesale market. This price was paid at the weekly auction, held at the Board of Trade, when 438 boxes were offered to the highest bidder. A total of 185 boxes of No. 2 sold at 19 1/2c.

In the afternoon the wholesale butter market, for carlots or less was quoted at 20c to 20 1/2c, per pound, which represents gains of 1 1/2c, so far for the week, and 3c to 3 1/2c for the month to date.

Small lots to retailers will, effective tomorrow morning, be 22c for solids and 23c for prints. Receipts were posted for the day at fifty-five boxes, compared with 3,799 boxes on the same day last year, strikingly suggesting the drop in production.

The egg market was also strong. Extras sold as high as 25c a dozen. The cheese market was a little easier. Dealers said exporters were not following the late advance entirely, and that had taken the edge off the market.

In the afternoon the cheese market was being quoted 10 1/2c to 10 3/4c, for Ontario, and 9 1/2c to 10c, for Quebec, which was 1/4c, to 1/2c, down from the previous day. Receipts were 2,532 boxes.

The potato market ranged from 40c to 50c, per eighty-pound bag for new Montreal potatoes.

SOCIAL SERVICE PLANS TAG DAY

Appeal Saturday to Help Work of Rehabilitating Needy Families

To raise much needed funds for the carrying on of the family welfare work of the Social Service League, which has been materially enhanced by unemployment conditions—the Social Service League will hold a tag day on Saturday, Mrs. Walter Parry, the convenor, would be grateful for volunteers to help with the tagging, headquarters for which will be at 621 Fort Street. All communications may be made through the Social Service League, 45 Arcade Building, or telephone E 4714.

HUMAN RELATIONSHIP PROBLEMS
While many people are aware that the Social Service League functions in Victoria, many are unfamiliar with its objects. It aims to provide the necessities of life to those who have been deprived of them, to raise the standard of living, to advise and assist those who are in difficulties, to give relief employment, medical care and education. In short, it deals with problems arising from human relationships. No application is turned away from the league's manner of assisting.

NO PUBLIC GRANTS
The Social Service League receives no assistance from the province or city but depends solely on voluntary contributions. In order to continue its important and beneficial programme the league has arranged the tag day to take place Saturday, and appeals to the citizens of Victoria to co-operate in responding with their own contributions.

In the twenty years of the league's existence the public has displayed interest and generosity in supporting its appeals and it feels sure that at this time no one will fail to lend a hand in making this tag day a success.

DUNCAN PAIR WED YESTERDAY

Miss Dorothy Critchley Bride Yesterday of Albert G. Colk

Duncan, Aug. 18—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John's Church, Duncan, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Rev. A. Bischoff officiated in marriage Dorothy Ella Irene, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Critchley, and Albert George Colk, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Colk, both of Duncan. The church was handsomely decorated by girl friends of the bride, with sweet peas, gladioli and ferns, and an arch of flowers, under which the bride party stood. The service was conducted with music by the organ. During the signing of the register Miss May Tombs sang: "O Promise Me."

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage, looked lovely in her white ankle-length gown, fashioned of rows of lace, with deep blue collar of net edged with the lace, narrow white satin girdle. She wore a tulle veil, with circlet of orange blossoms, white mule shoes and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, lilacs-of-the-valley and maidenhair fern. Her sister, Miss Olive Critchley, as maid of honor, was gowned in cream embroidered net over pink, bertha collar, with ruffles of the net, narrow pink girdle, hat of pink mohair and shoes to match. Her bouquet was of pink carnations and cream sweet peas.

Miss Dorothy Colk, sister of the groom, and Miss Elsie Kirkham, acted as bridesmaids, the former dressed in a gown of pink point d'esprit, made with a short coat, pink shoes and beige mohair hat, and Miss Kirkham similarly dressed in blue. Their bouquets corresponded in tone, being of lilacs, pink larkspur. The little flower girl, Glenys Lashmar, looked sweet in an old-fashioned gown of yellow tulle, ruffles of tulle on the shirt, puffed sleeves tied with black velvet bows and Dutch cap to match. She carried a hand-crocheted basket of flowers. Mr. Nelson Goodwin, Victoria, cousin of the groom, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, where her mother received the guests, wearing an ensemble of grey georgette and lace, and shoes on the mainline, the bride traveling in a becoming ensemble suit of forget-me-not blue, flat crepe, with beige lace top, lace-crowned hat of beige mohair and shoes to match. Their return the happy pair will reside in Duncan.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Colk left for a honeymoon on the mainland, the bride traveling in a becoming ensemble suit of forget-me-not blue, flat crepe, with beige lace top, lace-crowned hat of beige mohair and shoes to match. Their return the happy pair will reside in Duncan.

"Havenwood" Scene Delightful Fete To Aid Church

"Havenwood," the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pendray, at Esquimalt Lagoon, was open to the public for the first time yesterday afternoon on the occasion of the garden party under the auspices of St. John's W.A. Colwood. Mrs. Pendray welcomed the guests, among whom were a number of Victorians and out-of-town visitors, and showed them over the charming grounds with its rock garden, wild dell traversed by a rippling brook, its lawns and many other attractions.

Miss James was in charge of the gate receipts, and the delicious afternoon tea was served from tables beautifully arranged with sweet peas in the pastel shades. The tea arrangements were in charge of Mrs. H. Parker, Mrs. A. Godfrey and Mrs. R. W. Robinson. Clock golf and other games on the emerald lawns proved a popular diversion and materially swelled the funds of the afternoon.

SEARCH FOR GIRL IN ONTARIO FAILS

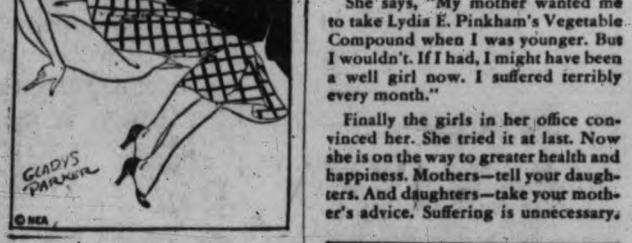

Canadian Press
Sunbridge, Ont., Aug. 18—Five hundred men, some in boats and two in a plane have pursued a vigorous but so far unsuccessful search for Eva Hall, thirteen-year-old girl who has been missing for three days in woods near Poverty Bay.

The girl went picking huckleberries Monday afternoon and was reported missing soon afterward. Fears are held that the child having suffered an attack of sunstroke, is lying in the woods where she fell into Poverty Bay and was drowned.

Discouragement facing the search parties was increased when it became known that a United States tourist named Rose, who had been helping in the hunt, had himself vanished into the woods and could not be located. Poverty Bay is in the Pary Sound region of Georgian Bay.

Deaf Mute Girl Burned to Death

Hartland, N.B., Aug. 18—Unable to cry out for help, Geraldine Glass, seven-year-old deaf-mute, was burned to death in her father's barn at Lower Windsor near here to-day. Trapped in the blazing barn and unable to let herself out, the little girl perished in the flames, while her parents, ignorant time was in the barn, tried to save their livestock.

IT SAVED HER DAUGHTER

It is the daughter herself—Miss Rose Lama—who willingly gives the facts in a letter.

She says, "My mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was younger. But I wouldn't. If I had, I might have been a well girl now. I suffered terribly every month."

Finally the girls in her office convinced her. She tried it at last. Now she is on the way to greater health and happiness. Mothers—tell your daughters. And daughters—take your mother's advice. Suffering is unnecessary.

WOMEN'S PLACE IN BUSINESS

Present Time of Great Opportunity, Says Duchess of Atholl, M.P.

London, Aug. 18.—That the present time is one of great opportunity for women in the business world, particularly in administrative posts, was emphasized by speakers at the International Congress on Commercial Education, of which the Prince of Wales is patron.

JOY FOR CONSULATE

The Duchess of Atholl, M.P., presided at the session at the London School of Economics, where one of the chief topics of discussion was "Women in Business." She said that she had desired for some years to see more women in business posts which would give them a practical grasp of economics.

Referring to the subject at the close of the discussion, the Duchess of Atholl referred to a suggestion that consular posts should be open to women, and said that from her knowledge of the varied duties of a consul, which she obtained while serving on the royal commission on the civil service, she came to the conclusion that it would be difficult to find many women who could discharge all those duties with success.

Miss P. G. Bailey-Parker, who holds an administrative post in a commercial house, said the present time offered great opportunities to women. Old ideas were going by the board because they had not weathered the economic storm, and the world was looking for reliable leadership under new conditions. The average woman brought to business a fresh outlook, practical sense, a keen appreciation of the humor of life, endurance and a mind untrammelled by business habits. Efforts should not cease until every professional and trade society, association or institute admitted women to membership on the same terms as men. The Stock Exchange had given little encouragement to women, but there

IMAGINATION ESSENTIAL

Miss Ruth Tomlinson, secretary of the Incorporated Federated Associations of Boot and Shoe Manufacturers, and secretary of the National Institute of the Boot and Shoe Industry, said that for administrative control a woman needed imagination, common sense, understanding, tact, patience, resourcefulness, a mind of her own, analytical ability, impartiality, a keen sense of justice and physical fitness. Imagination came first, because it was the driving force of all human progress, and a woman administrator should give her imagination all the exercise and practice possible within the bounds of practical service, and control. Women in business had a good deal to learn from men in the matter of physical fitness. They would have to go in for better and more regular meals, more physical culture and more outdoor recreation to assist them to "stay the course."

So far as senior administrative work was concerned, Miss Tomlinson added, women were to-day undergoing a period of test and trial in industry—not, however, to justify their forming a part of the industrial machine. The gate of opportunity was fairly wide open, and each year she believed it would open more widely. The field beyond was too enormous to contemplate precisely, but it included business building, development of new industries, town planning, research in the use of new materials and methods, modernizing the commercial machine, the development of policies to fit in with to-day's requirements in labor, hygiene and welfare work, staff personnel, advertising and remodeling of marketing methods.

DAZED VETERAN UNIDENTIFIED

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Aug. 18.—Canadian Legion officials here state they are unable to find any trace in their records of an ex-serviceman named John MacNallieard, who was taken in charge by police in London, Ont., after being found wandering in a dazed condition.

Efforts to identify MacNallieard, who claims he was born in Vancouver, through other sources have also been unsuccessful.

E. P. McDermid Jr., of Vancouver, is here to-day at the Empress Hotel.

DIPPING INTO THE MODE

Mrs. William Wright Harts Jr., the former Lillian Emerson, chose the new style hat that dips on the right and sweeps away from the face on the left, when she arrived in New York recently, with her husband, after a European honeymoon. Her two-piece traveling dress featured the cape that is a distinctive part of the fall mode, and she tied a black scarf in an audacious bow on her left shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Stevens came over from Port Townsend to-day and are at the Empress Hotel.

Aged Men Enjoy Jolly Outing To Esquimalt Home

An event which has become traditionally known to the inmates of the Aged Men's Home as Fred Landsberg's annual picnic was held yesterday afternoon at Esquimalt Lagoon. Starting after an early dinner the company was conveyed by numerous autos to the summer home of Major and Mrs. Kirkpatrick-Crockett, the grounds and accommodations of which had been placed at the disposal of the party. The games programme was organized on arrival and enjoyable contests were held in quoits, nail-driving, walking and running races in which all who were able participated. A hotly contested baseball game captured by Reeve Croucher, opposed by Major R. F. Angus, resulted in a draw.

One of the novelties of the occasion was a race by "deputy," which event was won by Mayor Leeming, running for Pat Harty. Afterward the mayor distributed the various prizes to winners in the several contests.

An early tea served on tables comfortably placed in the shade of the great trees, arranged and supervised by the hostess and host, with the usual refreshments, fruits and confectionery incident to these picnics, concluded the practical programme.

Mayor Leeming, Alderman James Adam and Alderman W. T. Straith made short addresses, thanking Mr. Landsberg, Major and Mrs. Kirkpatrick-Crockett, donors of auto transportation and refreshments, Major Crockett and Fred Landsberg responding.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

BREATH-HOLDING MAY HAVE SERIOUS SIGNIFICANCE

There are many and conflicting opinions about breath-holding. Babies are accused of holding their breaths from anger, as if this behavior, which is terrifying to the mother, were done on purpose. The old-fashioned method of dealing with such actions was to nip them right in the bud with a dash of cold water. Sometimes the surprised infant gave a shriek that effectually ended the breath-holding, and the satisfied mother related afterwards how the little vixen held his breath and what she did to show him the error of his ways.

SERIOUS MEANING

But breath-holding may be of the most dangerous significance. It is possible that the baby can not prevent himself from holding his breath. Anger, fear and injuries may cause him to cry out, but his inability to draw his breath may be related to an enlarged thymus gland, which effectually cuts off his breath.

Whatever the cause, the baby holds his breath, then grows progressively more distressed until eventually he expires. It is a limp, white and exhaled. Such actions should leave no doubt that the child needs some attention more intelligent than throwing water at him. He needs an X-ray examination of the thymus gland to determine its size.

GROWS SMALLER

The thymus glands is largest in infancy and gradually diminishes in size until it practically disappears at puberty. If it is much larger than normal, this large gland, situated at the base of the throat, is capable of pressing so heavily upon the respiratory organs as to cause real danger of asphyxiation. This is not an infrequent happening. It is less frequent than in the days when mothers called all their babies' breath-holding spells "temper," and punished the luckless infants for misbehavior.

X-ray treatments will reduce the size of the thymus gland. It is true that inevitably time will do this, but it is hardly wise to wait until this happens naturally when it is obvious that the gland is too large for safety.

NOT ALWAYS THYMUS GLAND

One need not jump to the conclusion that every baby who holds his breath is suffering from an enlarged thymus gland. The incidence is only about one baby in a thousand. But when a baby holds his breath for slight cause and then shows extreme pallor and exhaustion afterwards, it should arouse the mother's suspicion that his actions are beyond his control.

About 100 animals will be exhibited in the goat show at the Provincial Fair next week. As usual, Bannock will be the chief competitive animals, although there are a number of Nubians and Toggenburgs to be shown.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

Particularly in summer, delicious and inexpensive meals are possible. The August appetite demands less substantial food and the market offers vegetables and fruits at minimum prices.

Whatever is most seasonable should be the basis of the dinner. Plenty of vegetables, a little meat and a dessert round the menu is complete.

A stuffed vegetable dinner furnishes an interesting meat flavor with little tax on the food allowance. It's amazing how many vegetables lend themselves to interesting concoctions with well seasoned stuffings of meat or nuts combined with bread crumbs, macaroni or rice. Cabbage, eggplant, tomatoes, green peppers, cucumbers, summer squash, potatoes and onions are attractive and of increased nourishment when served stuffed and baked.

CUTTING COSTS

The vegetable and meat casserole is another low-cost dish. The long, slow cooking develops a rich, blended flavor that is decidedly appetizing. For August meals, use carrots, lima beans, corn, tomatoes, onions, celery—any combination you have at hand with meat as a seasoning. Use bottled coloring to make it brown and season generously with kitchen herbs to give a pungent savoriness.

The cost of the meal also can be kept down by planning desserts to add to the food value and to round out the meal. Jelly desserts and cereal puddings of rice, cornstarch and tapioca blend well with the flavor of fresh fruits.

A creamy rice pudding such as "summer rice pudding" (the recipe was printed here last of July) is appropriate for the hottest day and rivals the most extravagant dishes. A soft custard perfectly made and thoroughly chilled makes a nourishing sauce for fresh peaches or other fruit. Fruit juices stiffened with cornstarch and molded with small pieces of fruit are delectable served with plain cream and powdered sugar.

Charcuterie of lamb and rice combines a little lamb, which has been cut in cubes and cooked, with onions, peas and carrots in a thin sauce. Curry powder and a shredded sweet pepper are added for seasoning and the mixture is turned into a deep baking dish lined with cooked rice. Rice is spread over the top and dotted with bits of butter. Then the dish is closely covered and baked for thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Unmold to serve.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Breakfast—Grapes, cereal, cream, coffee, syrup, milk, coffee.
Luncheon—Stuffed baked cucumbers, banana and peanut salad, sliced peaches with custard sauce, lemonade.
Dinner—Meat and vegetable casserole, pineapple and cabbage salad with pimento dressing, tapioca cream pudding, milk, coffee.

NUDE PICTURE CONTROVERSY

John Russell, Artist, Has Difference With Toronto Exhibition Gallery

Toronto, Aug. 18.—Picture of a nude figure, painted by John Russell, Canadian artist and prizewinner at Paris Salon, has provoked a difference of opinion between Mr. Russell and authorities of the Canadian National Exhibition Art Gallery, to whom the picture was submitted for display.

Unless the nude, one of twelve works submitted by him, is exhibited, he will remove every one of his paintings from the exhibition, Russell declared to-day.

Fred Haines, curator of the gallery, said Russell had sent in more paintings than the exhibition could use, and that the nude was not going to be put on view.

Acting under instructions of the morality department, two police officers visited the gallery to-day to inspect nudes already hung there in preparation for the opening of the exhibition. They made copious notes on four nudes, one of which was the life-size figure of a young girl, painted by Russell. After a lengthy conference regarding the latter picture, exhibition officials explained it was not going to be shown at the fair.

Considerable controversy was occasioned some years ago when the exhibition art gallery gave a conspicuous place to a nude by Russell. The artist, a native of Toronto, had just returned from Paris, where his work was awarded a prize at the spring Salon.

CHAPTER I

The alarm whirled—as alarms, carefully set and wound, have a way of doing—whirled and strangled through the dark sixty-seventh Street flat, reverberated in the arway, punctuated by a slamming of windows and the sound of voices.

"Aw, turn that alarm off, will ya?" "Hey, you, Moran!" "It's the redhead. Bud don't get up this early!"

Seven-thirty. . . . And Mona (nee Minnie) Moran stirred, nestled cozily for a moment, then lifted a slender arm from the coverlet and snapped off the shrill noise. She turned over again, placed a palm beneath her cheek and closed her eyes.

Mona long ago had decided that the last half hour of sleep caught this way—stolen really from the workaday world—was the most delicious. Thirty more drowsy minutes to reflect on this and that or to forget it all in the relaxation of another nap.

Mona had problems. What girl as young and lovely as Mona does not have—even when she is not, as Mona assuredly was—the support of her family? There were five in that family, counting dad in the hospital and Bud, the elder brother, away from home when he had a job and back home when broke.

Seven-forty. Seven-fifty. Seven-fifty-five.

Then, as if another alarm had sounded, Mona stirred again. She patted a dainty yawn with the back of her rose-tipped hand, glanced at the sleeping Kitty beside her—Kitty's slim little girlishness occupying more than half the narrow bed—and slid out carefully.

Mona stretched her arms again and took indifferent stock of herself in the mirror. She had become used to the pleasant report that mirror gave. There were those who wondered why, with such a figure, such creamy skin, such green-grey eyes and miraculous bronze hair, Mona had not followed her first job as errand girl and later model at Pilgrim's with a stage affiliation.

It was true that Mona had had several such offers but she had rejected them all. To marry a stage electrician (more chorus girls did, you know, than landed millionaires) had no part in Mona Moran's plans.

So she had taken a job as receptionist for the exclusive law firm of Garretson, Lawton and Amesbury.

"I see people here," Mona confided to her friend, Lottie Carr. "I get to know them without parading half dressed behind the footlights. I learn to walk, to talk, to dress and how to act."

Lottie, tall, blond and languorous, was a model at Pilgrim's.

"That Carr girl is no better than she would be," ma would declare after one of Lottie's visits to the Moran home. "Perfume, $20 an ounce! Handkerchiefs, $25 a dozen or I'm a liar. No good working girl—"

"Oh, she's all right, mother!" Mona would protest. "It's just that—that Lottie—"

She would break off here for Mona could hardly finish as she had intended. "It's just that Lottie has no family to support." Ma would be hurt—and rightly—at that.

"Well," ma would weaken, "I don't want that girl calling up the house. I don't want you going out with her. My daughters are good girls!"

Mona was, and indeed, for that matter, so was Lottie. Mrs. Moran might have had the useful support of many reformed young men as to that. Lottie, frivolous, gay, attractive in the costumes her position as model afforded her, would beg Mona to join her on frequent parties with that collection of young clubmen to whom Lottie referred to as "the gang."

"Sometimes, Lottie. But don't count on me for many of these affairs. I need my sleep. I have to work."

"Go to bed and never meet any nice people!" Lottie amended her. "You might get yourself a husband if you'd step out more. Ever think of that?"

Mona shook her head. "Yes, I think of it. But you don't get them that way. I know my onions."

And Lottie had rejoined significantly, recalling the malodorous Sixty-seventh Street flat, "I'll say you do! But do you know the artichokes?"

Mona knew that, for some time at least, she could not think of marrying. It was out of the question. Not with Bud acting as he did, in and out of a job, absent for days on end, home idling, begging small sums for carfare, cigarettes.

Not with her father in the hospital. Mona couldn't go to a husband saddled with these family cares.

Her father! Mona's patient, kindly, hard-working father, stricken suddenly with that obscure, powerful malady which no doctor named definitely, of which no doctor would predict the outcome! He had been in the hospital now for months. Terrence Moran and his wife had come to America years ago with such high hopes. They had left Ireland earlier than that for Scotland but in Glasgow had heard of America, the land of opportunity. Terrence had worked at this and that to provide for his ever-growing family. There had been two children older than Kitty, both dead.

The Morans had lived in the same flat for years, protesting against the gradual rise in rents after the subway was opened. In the apartment house Terrence Moran had been something of a figure, his kindly philosophy sought at all times.

His stockinged feet high on the window sill, his eyes twinkling over his newspaper which he read with laboriously moving lips, dad, in his way, influenced the entire neighborhood.

They came to him for advice in matters of courtship and weddings, for condolence at the time of death, for encouragement in illness.

"Once and for all" the time they ran away to Jersey and had their mother worried to death. He had arranged—yes, had contributed heavily toward—Tim Callahan's funeral. The night Joe Donahue's baby was born dad had walked the streets with him, giving him comfortable assurance that he and Flossie would both live through it—to go through the whole thing all over again no doubt.

Lottie Carr had sufficient reason for adoring Mona's father. There had been the time her own father had locked her out when she came home late from Coney Island with that Brower boy. Terrence Moran had straightened that out.

Yes, Mona certainly owed it to dad to stick by the family and not to think of marriage until—Until what? Mona's thoughts could get no further with the problem but Lottie's could—and did.

"Marry a man who'll take care of your family for you," was Lottie's plan.

Such men are few and far between. So are girls like Mona, with trim figures, glowing bronze hair, best of all an angelic disposition.

"You are the sort of girl, my dear, who'll marry some good-for-nothing some fine day and support him," Lottie averred. "Well, always room for one more! Remember—significantly—"you're not getting any younger."

"Why don't you marry?" Mona would demand hotly at this stage of the discussion.

"I've made my plans," Lottie would reply enigmatically. "Meanwhile, why not go out with us to-night and look the eligible over?"

In spite of varying opinions on many subjects the girls were quite friendly.

From eight o'clock, when ma gently knocked on Mona's door to supplement the alarm, until eight-fifteen the dark, tiny little gas-lit bathroom down the hall was Mona's sole property. Ma knew it. Even Bud—the overlord of the radio, the coziest chair and the newspaper acquired.

"She supports us all," Ma would say flatly. "If all she asks is a hot bath in the morning, by hook or crook, she'll get that bath."

And Mona got it. It took a little conniving with the janitor but that was managed. A rich warm bath, creamy with scented salts given to Mona at Christmas by Lottie, ten minutes' relaxation in the dismal tin tub.

Another five minutes and Mona had dried her slender body, donned the wispie georgette thing she wore under her slip, brushed her bronze hair into its customary waves, deftly turning the ends into a roll at her creamy neck.

She touched her lips carefully with lipstick and drawn her tailor-made wool gown over her head, settling the white frills at neck and wrist with a speculative frown.

A delicate film of powder came next. Mona's smart little hat was drawn on carefully. Her purse—there. Her coat and gloves—here. Barring an accident or two, and breakfast in the office, she was ready.

Other girls at the law office wore silk dresses of flashy color and design. Cheap, typical. They were the dresses offered in many shops on lower Broadway. One could not, it seemed, bring one's salary very far from Wall Street.

But Mona, sent by chance on an errand for her employer's wife (serving on a charity committee), had observed that this exponent of the envied class wore black wool with delicate collar and cuffs.

The frills of Mrs. Garretson's gown had, in fact, cost a trifle more than the brown crepe frock Mona was wearing. Real lace was too expensive for Mona but it was not long after this encounter that she disposed of the brown crepe and appeared at the office in tailored black wool.

By some odd chance Bud Moran, Mona's brother, was not only at home but was up betimes and breakfasting. Bud sat at the other end of the table, busily engaged in consuming a bowl of cereal and milk.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Adventures of the Sea

XXIV—REMOVING THE DINOSAUR When Mr. Weston reached camp with Allen and Roberta what was the excitement and rejoicing over the news they had to tell. A leg-bone of the great monster, Atlantosaurus, had been found!

To the shore went more of the bones of Atlantosaurus.

Dignified as he was, Dr. Barstow was almost on the point of leaping for joy. With his fellow scientist and most of the other men, he hurried toward the place where the leg-bone had been seen.

Of course Allen and Roberta tagged along. They were glad of the excitement because it prevented them from being scolded for taking the rowboat without any older person on board.

Reaching the shore, the scientists and the sailors lost no time in wading out. Three men had to untie their strength to drag the giant bone which was at least eight feet long, out of the water.

The water at this point was less than four feet deep, and the men quickly discovered other bones. Many of these had to be dug out. To the shore went more and more of the bones of Atlantosaurus. There were shouts and cheers as the bones were taken up. Captain Thompson directed six sailors to go for the lifeboat, and when it was brought around the bones were placed on board.

The third trip of the lifeboat conveyed the last of the bones to the steamer.

At the camp that night, everyone was in a merry mood. "Tomorrow morning, we are going to leave the island," announced Captain Thompson. "Dr. Barstow says that he is more than pleased with the results of our expedition."

A little later, Roberta turned to Mr. Weston and said: "Uncle Tim, I wish you would tell something more about Atlantosaurus."

"I want to hear some more, too," said Allen. "Is it really the biggest dinosaur that ever lived?"

"Yes, so far as is known, Atlantosaurus is the largest dinosaur which ever roamed the earth. Dr. Barstow and I have made rough calculations, and judging by the size of certain of the bones, this fellow must have been close to 100 feet long. We have not yet made a full check-up of the bones, but it seems that this skeleton is just about complete. I believe that it will prove to be the most nearly complete skeleton of an Atlantosaurus which has been discovered."

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
© 1930 BY N.W. CORLEY INC.

So many people wonder what causes inferiority, and to answer that question psychologists have delved into the secrets of human behavior and offered up many answers.

Most of these are true. It does not take much to cause the complex in a child, and it seems that almost everything can water this seed and cause trouble.

What is the commonest cause of loss of confidence and self respect in children? Why is it that Mary steps behind everybody and feels that she doesn't know anything? She wasn't that way when she was little, but now she is twelve and somewhere on the way she has lost her backbone and her spirit.

A little incident the other day made me thoughtful. It happened to a twelve-year-old Mary who was visiting a friend.

Anne's grandmother was making a bed.

"I'll have to make some more sheets," said the lady. "We like them long and so we make them ourselves."

Just a few days before Mary had been shopping with her mother and had heard a lot about the length and width of sheets.

"Mother buys them long," she said

politely. "Is 108 inches long enough?"

"Ninety-nine," corrected Anne's grandmother, shaking a pillow. "You can't get them over that."

"I am sure mother said '108,'" the little girl told her. "And I saw it on the label."

"Don't contradict me, child; I know. Mary left the room and went down stairs, her face a fiery red. She was right and she knew she was right."

Grandma, who looked after the house, hadn't gone shopping for sheet since the year they started to make extra lengths. She thought she knew it all, and considered Anne's guest impertinent.

This incident in itself is not important, but it is revealing. It illustrates the point very nicely. Children think pretty straight and they have a habit of remembering fact and getting information.

We older people take it for granted that by right of years we know it all. We patronize them, or contradict them or scold them for holding their own ideas, for saying or doing things their own way.

These recourses of ours to verbal steam-rolling is an admission, an acknowledgment that too often these young people are right and we are wrong.

Yet, having to prove their way has its effect. Here and there, day by day they are being given to understand that they are "just children" and as such do not know anything. They lose confidence in their own truth.

You see then, how it is. Childhood itself is a cause of inferiority, unless from sheer resentment it protects itself by becoming unpleasantly aggressive.

Inferiority may be spineless, but it camouflages itself quite often and puts on a protective coat of prickly spines outside. Is it to be blamed?

In estimating the number of lines in an advertisement, count five words for the first two lines and seven words for each line thereafter. This is not an absolute guide to the number of lines, much depending on the length of the individual words.

London, Aug. 18.—Cables from its deputation at Ottawa informed the Timber Trade Federation of the United Kingdom to-day that no definite decision had yet been reached with other timber interests. Negotiations, necessarily of a confidential character, still were proceeding.

COMING TO EMPIRE

"Charlot's Revue," which was a smash-hit on Broadway several years ago, started Gertrude Lawrence and Beatrice Lillie on their respective roads to fame. Miss Lillie is carrying on her comedy characterizations in the movies—and so is Miss Lawrence. The latter's newest picture, "Aren't We All?" comes to the Empire Theatre on Friday next. Miss Lawrence is starred in the role of the wife who catches her husband in a mild intrigue—and pretends to retaliate—with humorous results.

MISTAKEN PARENT OFTEN HANDICAP TO STUTTERER

Home Remedies Frequently Prove More Harmful Than Beneficial

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Obviously, stutters have difficulties in their social life. It is found that they prefer the society of one or two close friends or the impersonality of crowds to association with groups of eight or ten acquaintances.

Apparently, they prefer to be certain that they are being genuinely accepted or else they prefer to remain unnoticed. It is obvious that seclusion means security against potential ridicule.

The relative degree of severity of the stuttering seems to be of the greatest importance in determining the extent to which stutters take part in social life. Severe cases seem to withdraw entirely from contact with other people. Nevertheless, like other people, stutters attach great value to social approval. They may be timid, retiring, or aloof and sarcastic, but they try to get on with other people.

In an attempt to evaluate some of the causes for stuttering, Dr. Wendell Johnson, who reports the results of investigations made at the University of Iowa, attempted to find out the relationship of parents to children in cases of stuttering.

Physicians find regularly that parents are likely to associate the beginning of any paralysis or disturbance that may take place in a child with a fright or shock or a fall. In the same way parents who are asked about stuttering put most of the responsibility on frights and emotional shocks, on severe illnesses and injuries, on a lack of will power, the tendency to talk too fast or to think too fast, and even on tongue-tie.

A surprising number of parents think that stuttering is a stage through which every child must pass and which he will outgrow if let alone. Since the definite cause of the stuttering was not known to the parents, their attempts at prevention and treatment were usually full of folly. The child tries to meet its parents' demands and will, on occasion, even simulate improvement in order to avoid punishment or gain reward.

One stepmother whipped her stepson ten times a day for stuttering. The parents, of course, exhort their children and give them sympathy if they are timid and self-conscious, but in general this is not successful in relieving the stuttering. Most such cases demand careful study and treatment applied particularly to their conditions. Sometimes the stuttering is not alone responsible for the social maladjustments of the stutterer. A careful investigation of his psychology may reveal other factors which bear a considerable responsibility for his troubles of behavior and of personality. Nevertheless, the stuttering complicates every phase of his existence and occasionally when the investigator breaks through he sees the type of person that the stutterer might have been without his physical and mental disturbance. These mental disturbances are more likely to be intensified if the stuttering persists into advanced years. Sometimes the emotional disturbance is a contributing cause, and if this can be determined the stuttering may disappear with a realization of the emotional disturbance.

BARTHELMESS AT CAPITOL

Popular Star Plays Leading Role in "Winner Take All" Opening Here To-day

A motion picture star has to satisfy more than his director that he has enacted his part to perfection with all due realism. There is a watchful audience of millions of people ready to pick a characterization to pieces. Thus, when Richard Barthelmess played the role of a surgeon, all the doctors in the country who saw the picture were ready at the least misstep to laugh in derision. Barthelmess had to go through some real medical training before he undertook the part. James Cagney understands what the demand for realism means. In his latest Warner Bros. picture, "Winner Take All," which is at the Capitol Theatre to-day, he plays the part of a prize fighter. When the camera caught him in the ring, his body was perfectly developed, without the slightest bit of surplus poundage, and his technique was realistic enough to satisfy the myriad of fight-fans who will see his picture.

But it took weeks of preparation under the guiding hand of an experienced trainer—diet, exercise and boxing instruction, before Cagney was let perfect in his characterization.

"I don't say that Jimmy Cagney is a born fighter," Harvey Perry, the early environment and training. In the district in which Jimmy lived in New York, self-defence meant self-preservation. He has never had to resort to fighting since boyhood, but his early training will never leave him. Fighting is an instinct, and the real way to its fine points is through early association."

MARY ASTOR AT THE COLUMBIA

For the third time within a few months this popular romantic film team, Mary Astor and Ricardo Cortez, appears in a picture.

They played together the first time in RKO-Radio Pictures' "Behind Office Doors," directed by Melville Brown. Next, they were in "White Shoulders," also directed by Brown for the same studio.

According to George Archambaud, director of the current Mary Astor-Ricardo Cortez vehicle, "Men of Chance," now at the Columbia Theatre, the team is growing in popularity.

"These players are perfectly suited for teamwork," he said. In the first place they are exact opposites—he is fair-skinned—he is a distinctly Latin type. They are both gifted players."

DOMINION THEATRE

An ounce of personality is worth a pound of luck in any motion picture studio.

Hollywood's extra ranks are crowded with beautiful girls and—Adonis-like men waiting for a break in luck, but the starring heights are occupied only by those players who possess that indefinable something called personality. John Barrymore, the star of RKO Radio Pictures' "State's Attorney," now showing at the Dominion Theatre, is picturesque and colorful in everything he does. Barrymore has captured the popular imagination as few public figures ever have. His famous profile undoubtedly has aided in that conquest, but it is the glamour of his personality that has caused legends to spring up about him.

In "State's Attorney," the dashing Barrymore is supported by Helen Twelvetrees, a blonde star with considerable personality of her own. The two are the central figures of a whirlwind romance.

DOUBLE BILL AT PLAYHOUSE

"The Lawyer's Secret," at the Playhouse Theatre here, is enacted by an all-star cast of favorite motion picture players, and, in addition, marks the introduction of Charles Rogers, popular juvenile star, to dramatic roles.

Clive Brooks heads the cast of well-known actors, with Rogers and Richard Arlen carrying unusually forceful roles. The feminine parts are sustained by Fay Wray and Jean Arthur, both of whom have been well received by motion picture audiences everywhere in leading roles. The supporting parts are filled by such capable actors as Francis McDonald, the dark and handsome badman of many Paramount thrillers, by Wilbur Mack, Harold Goodwin and Sid Saylor. Saylor was last seen as a roistering sailor with Ruth Chatterton in "Unfaithful."

ROMANO THEATRE

Loretta Young, chosen a year ago as the American Venus, has earned a new title, that of "girl Lon Chaney," as a result of her work and make-up in "The Hatcher Man," Edward G. Robinson's latest starring-vehicle for First National and Vitaphone pictures, which is showing at the Romano Theatre to-day. Amused experts applied the new title to her after seeing her as Toya San, ward and wife of "The Hatcher Man." The almond shaped eyes, high cheek bones, jet hair and rosybud mouth of a beautiful Oriental siren have been reproduced perfectly, transforming Loretta into a genuine "lotus blossom."

When he pleaded guilty in the City Police Court this morning to a charge of driving to the common danger on Yates Street, Walter Bira was fined $20 or five days. He was given a week to pay.

Tenders for the private operation of Ladder-Woodward ferry for five years have been called by the Public Works Department. It was learned at the Parliament Buildings to-day. The tenders are returnable September 2.

Joseph Bailey and Andrew Todd were charged in the City Police Court this morning with keeping beer for sale at 645 Johnson Street. R. C. Lowe appeared on their behalf and had the case remanded to August 24. Sergeant Arthur Bishop laid the charges.

The Saanich School Board has appointed Miss Irene Hull as a teacher at Cedar Hill School. She will replace Miss Dunn, who resigned last June to be married. The board accepted the resignation of Miss Doris Greenwood from the staff of Tolmie School. The vacancy will not be filled.

No decision has yet been made by the Saanich School Board as to the awarding of the high school scholarship bursaries recently authorized. The system will be organized at a conference of high school principals with a committee of trustees. The board was yesterday evening informed that it had not yet been possible to arrange a meeting with the school principals.

Mayor Bridgman of North Vancouver was in the city to-day to discuss the repairing of the Second Narrows Bridge with the government. He said he was hopeful of assistance from the federal government as soon as the Economic Conference was concluded. Mayor Bridgman expressed appreciation of the efforts put forth by Premier Tolmie while in Ottawa to further the interests of the North Shore communities.

The provincial government to-day is consulting banks with a view to financing the repairing of the high school district to handle unemployment costs until a new agreement is reached between British Columbia and the federal government. For the past year the district has been in the city for two days in connection with the matter and it is anticipated that an arrangement will be concluded in a few days whereby the North Shore district will be enabled to carry on its unemployment relief.

D. H. HARTNESS NEW PRINCIPAL

Prince Rupert Man Is Appointed to Assume Charge of High School in Oak Bay

Dummal H. Hartness, B.A., was yesterday evening appointed principal of Oak Bay High School, succeeding George M. Billings, who recently resigned to take the position of headmaster at the University School. Mr. Hartness was chosen from twenty-nine applicants, including one woman.

Mr. Hartness has been principal of the King Edward High School in Prince Rupert, and here last week to file his application with the Oak Bay School Board. He is thirty-nine years of age, and is a graduate of the University of British Columbia, where he took honors in science. In his position at Prince Rupert he had a staff of nine teachers under him. Mr. Hartness has returned to Prince Rupert to make preparations to move to Victoria. He will be at his office at the High School early in September. Before the application of Mr. Hartness was accepted, the School Board offered the position of principal to T. S. Whittemore, senior teacher at the High School. Mr. Whittemore declined the offer for personal reasons. There was only one change in the teaching staffs of the Monterey and Willows schools this year. Miss Kathleen Brown, B.A., was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. A. Maunsell.

PASTORS ATTACK HOME BEER PLAN

Kidd Committee Only Consulted Brewers and Not "Drys," They Declare

Fewer Elopings Couples Come Here Now; Marriage License Fees Decrease

Delivery of beer from breweries to households reported recommended by the Kidd committee, met with strong criticism in ministerial circles to-day. Clem Davies, pastor of City Temple, discussing the proposal, said: "Evidently the brewers were consulted, but I've heard of no invitation extended by the Kidd committee to Ministerial or Prohibition Associations. I was under the impression the Kidd committee was formed to institute reforms in governmental administration and effect economy, not to help increase the consumption of beer. Prohibitionists undoubtedly will have something to say when the report is published. I am speaking from the one-sided manner in which the recommendation was made. The delivery of beer to households should have been discussed from all angles, not from the brewers' viewpoint alone."

The proposal to move the Liquor Board headquarters to New Westminster would affect many families in Victoria. There are twenty-eight employees in the warehouse here and twenty-four accountants in the same building. Added to this is the staff at the main offices in the Belmont Building. The move to New Westminster, however, with the closing of both Vancouver and Victoria breweries, would effect a substantial saving in handling charges, it is admitted.

The proposal to put the sheriff's office on a fee basis instead of straight salary is said to have been lifted bodily from a recommendation of the Law Society of B.C. up to a few years ago all sheriffs were paid by fees.

Victoria was the "Gretina Green" for many eloping Seattle couples, and the sheriff's office profited greatly thereby in former times when it was necessary to swear an affidavit for this or that document. However, with the enactment of the eight-day residence clause in the Marriage Act, this city lost the attraction it formerly held. Owing to the strict divorce laws in Canada, many young couples, with an eye to the future, now go across the line to be married.

FINISH SURVEY OF WATERSHED

Preparation of Plan of Sooke Lake System Now Under Way

Field work on the topographical survey of the city's watershed at Sooke Lake has just been completed, it was announced this morning by City Engineer F. M. Preston.

The survey has been under way for the last three years, and is the first accurate plotting of the watershed undertaken. Small votes were provided for the work each year by the City Council.

Preparation of the map resulting from the survey is now going on in the engineer's office, but will take some time to finish. A. O. Neakes did the surveying.

As a means of determining the exact potentialities of the watershed, the survey will be of great use to the city engineer explained. It gives the first correct details of the topography in all respects and will also aid in determining the value of timber on the watershed.

VICTORIA MAN IS ARCHIVIST

Canadian Press

Other officers are: C. W. Woods, of Vancouver, first vice-president; C. J. Smith, Hamilton, second vice-president; G. J. Smith, Toronto, treasurer; Frank MacDonald, Toronto, secretary; Harry MacLachlan, Victoria, archivist; Rev. John Wrenneth, Toronto, chaplain; Col. Oscar Gilbert, Quebec, sergeant-at-arms; F. Turpin, Montreal, and D. R. Sutherland, Jasper Park, Alta., guard of honor.

The major business yesterday was the adoption of a resolution requesting the Imperial Government to publish all official documents simultaneously in English and French.

VIEW DIFFER ON CONFERENCE

Divergence of Opinion Seen in British Press as Ottawa Discussions Proceed

Canadian Press
London, Aug. 18.—Sharp divergence of opinion was displayed by the press of the United Kingdom to-day in reporting progress of the Imperial Conference in Ottawa.

"Bennett drafts foreign treaty for Britain" was a headline in The London Daily Herald, labor organ. "While British delegates are furious at Canada's attempt to invade the United Kingdom's sovereignty," said The Herald, "Canadian government circles are equally furious in their denunciations that Mr. MacDonald is pulling strings against them from Lonsmeath."

SOVIET MENTIONED

What considerations of policy move our government to sacrifice the dominions to the Soviet? demanded The London Morning Post. Conservative "Their apathy pervasively is well expressed and applauded among those wanting Ottawa to fail, because they would sacrifice the empire either to free trade or internationalism. It is not the attitude this Parliament was elected to adopt, and not the policy the National Government was constituted to promote."

A report in The London Daily Mail stated: "A formula has been drafted to which Mr. Bennett is understood to have agreed."

RESCUES MAN FROM RAPIDS

Section Hand Saves Aged Man From Niagara Whirlpool

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 8.—A fifty-eight-year-old section hand risked his life last yesterday by leaping into the Whirlpool Rapids to rescue a man who had cast himself into the swirling current. The rescuer was James Amoretti. The man taken from the rapids said he was Joseph Cook, seventy-two, of Allegheny, N.Y.

When the cry went up that a man was in the water, Amoretti tied a rope around his waist and jumped into the rapids. Other members of the section gang with which he was working let out 500 feet of line before Amoretti reached the man, who had been knocked unconscious by being cast against the rocks.

Cook is recovering. Amoretti got only a few bruises.

"Dad" Meek, Former Victoria Ball Player, Dies in California.

Won Fame in Old Northwestern League for Great Work With Bat

Many Humorous Incidents Connected With His Playing Here

Edmonton Grads Have Established Record Without Equal

OLD-TIME baseball fans of Victoria will regret to learn of the death recently in Los Angeles, following an automobile accident, of Harman J. "Dad" Meek, former member of the Victoria Club in the old Northwestern League. Meek played with Victoria in 1912 and 1913 and was the leading hitter of the league both seasons. He was so big and slow that he had to hit them far to reach first base, so his batting average was certainly earned. He played ninety-eight games with Los Angeles in 1914 and he played forty-eight games with Los Angeles, Salt Lake and Vernon in 1915. He had about reached the end of the trail then, but he was still dangerous at the bat.

In his youth Meek had been a blacksmith at Chillicothe, Mo., and he had powerful wrists and forearms and he could swing a bat and make it whistle. He was always recognized as a remarkable left-handed hitter. "Dad" had been playing ball for quite awhile in various small leagues before he joined Victoria. He was a big, heavy man, and because of his lack of speed, catcher was about the only position left for him to play, although he sometimes filled in at first base.

The games here were played in a park built for lacrosse, long and narrow, and it was almost a cinch Meek would knock the ball out of the park, either in left field or right.

Opposing pitchers, therefore, walked him in the pinches. Victoria fans enjoyed seeing Meek smack them, and when he was walked the fans would howl.

"One day Meek was playing against Spokane and a young fellow named Swede Risberg, who afterwards became a great big league shortstop, was pitching against him. Swede had plenty of speed and as there were runners on the base, Meek fouled the first two pitches and then said: "No use wasting any kid, for I won't go after bad balls." Risberg threw another high, hard one and "Dad" knocked the ball over the left field fence, which was quite a drive for a left-handed hitter. That night Risberg was shipped to Ogden, Utah.

Meek was naturally left-handed and when he took up bowling he bowled left-handed. But when he played baseball he threw right-handed, but batted left-handed. After retiring from baseball Meek invested in bowling alleys in Los Angeles and San Francisco, and he and his son won fame as a father and son combination. "Dad" was a crack bowler and so was his son. One of the funniest things to ever happen on a ball field occurred one day when Meek was catching for Victoria. The bases were filled and a play was made at the plate. The runner going home knocked Meek down, and as he rocked to and fro on his back, struggling to get up, he got tangled in his chest protector, shin guards and mask and lay there for some time. Meek saw the humor of the thing himself and he had to laugh as he tried to roll over and rise to his feet. Meek was a great fellow on a ball club for he was always good tempered and he certainly could hit.

Although much has been written about the Edmonton Grads, famous women's basketball team it is doubtful if sport fans really know the fine record the girls' quintet has made.

It is considered an unusual feat to win a national title three years in succession, but to win and hold national honors for an entire decade is an accomplishment which has never been duplicated so far as we have been able to find.

Their complete record in Canadian finals follows:

1922—Edmonton Grads 41, London Shamrocks 8; Edmonton Grads 8, London Shamrocks 21.

1923—Edmonton Grads 17, London Shamrocks 22.

1924—Edmonton Grads 41, Toronto Ladies 13; Edmonton Grads 26, Toronto Ladies 13.

1925—Edmonton Grads 18, Toronto Y.W.H.A. 11; Edmonton Grads 17, Toronto Y.W.H.A. 10.

1926—Edmonton Grads 19, Toronto Ladies 24; Edmonton Grads 27, Toronto Ladies 6.

1927—Edmonton Grads 34, Toronto Ladies 24; Edmonton Grads 41, Toronto Ladies 13.

Secretary of Canadian Olympic Committee Gives Views on Future Teams

Los Angeles, Aug. 18.—Canadian Olympic officials are highly pleased with the showing of the Dominion's team at the Olympic Games here. A smaller squad of men than was sent overseas to Amsterdam scored more points, made better times and showed more all-round strength, even though they won only one championship to two in 1928.

"We brought a smaller team here because of financial difficulties," said M. M. (Bobby) Robinson, secretary of the Olympic committee. "We have every reason to feel proud of the performances of these men who surpassed anything Canadians accomplished in previous Olympics, with the exception, of course, of Percy Williams' double victory at Amsterdam."

"We definitely learned one or two things, too. One is that our team should be chosen at least six weeks before the games and placed in a training camp a month before competition starts. The expense was too great for us to have done this year."

"Another is that we have first-class middle distance men. In the past we took it for granted that we would win all races over 800 metres, but the Finns won only two track events at these games and Phil Edwards placed third in the 1,500-metre race. He has a great stride, is a gifted judge of pace and has a great fighting heart. All he lacks is reserve strength, that only a heavier man can possess."

JOB FOR CLUBS

As for the future, Mr. Robinson asserts, it is a job for the track clubs. "It is a job for the track clubs," he says. "The Canadian universities seldom bring out a star track man. High school boys are too young for Olympic competition, he believes. "It is the men of twenty-five and twenty-six who are winners at these games, not boys," he pointed out. "Take, for instance, Eddie Tolson, Patrick O'Callaghan, Tom Hampton, Lord Burghley, Edwards and Wilson—all men over twenty-four. Burghley was twenty-five before he reached his best form."

"This means that if Canada is to develop first-class athletes on a large scale, the work must be undertaken by clubs and not schools."

COONEY WEILAND GOES TO OTTAWA

Boston, Aug. 18.—Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, yesterday announced that Cooney Weiland, a regular for the past few years in the Bruins forward line, had been traded to the controlling interests of the Ottawa Senators. This was interpreted to indicate that Ottawa may be back in the National League next year. Weiland, who showed a complete reversal of form last year as compared with other sparkling seasons, went to Ottawa as part payment for Joe Lamb, who comes to the Bruins by way of the New York Americans.

sonnel, the Grads have played 337 official games, winning 349 of them. In compiling this record the teams have traveled more than 60,000 miles, including trips to the Olympic Games in Paris, 1924, and Amsterdam, 1928.

actless Woman Wonders Why She Is Friendless—Gambler in Love Is Advised To Take Losses Without Whining Children Come Before New Husband

EAR MISS DIX—What is wrong with me? I am a married woman with two children, a wonderful husband, a good home, a car, but no company friends. No one ever drops in or invites me out. I'll admit I lack tact. I tongue gets the better of me. I write things without thinking of offending people or I step on some one's toes and don't know it until I told how sarcastic I have been. My husband has a sparkling personality and I am no dumbbell, but we are actually friendless, so far as social contacts go. What's the remedy for a situation. MRS. ANONYMOUS.

Answer: I should say that what you need is a course in diplomacy. Of course, in a way, tact is a gift of nature. It is a sort of sixth sense that enables one to define instinctively what would hurt or offend other people, but if your Fairy God-mother failed to put this valuable gift in your cradle you can make a very good synthetic article that will do for all practical purposes.

The people who are built in the conversational china shop and who are always saying and doing the wrong thing, excuse their blunders by saying that they did not think, which is no palliation of the offense if they are a grade over the moron. I always feel like saying to them, as my old colored mammy used to say to her children: "Don't tell me you didn't think! What did God give you a thinker for if you don't use it?"

And that is true enough. If we have a thinker we should use it, and we can use it no more profitably than in dealing with our fellow creatures. There is no excuse for discussing bank defalcations with a woman whose son was a trusted cashier who falsified his accounts nor for asking a married woman who was the pretty blonde you saw her husband out with at the night club or for telling a mother that her cherished only child looks tubercular to you and inquiring if he isn't very undeveloped for his age.

Yet there are plenty of women who commit these conversational crimes. They seem to have a perfect genius for getting on topics that stir up discord and an unerring instinct for putting their fingers right on the sore spot in our life and telling you the thing you would rather die than hear.

The first rule then for cultivating tact is to think before you speak instead of afterward. If you are among people with whom you are well acquainted, you certainly are aware of the things in their lives over which they have drawn the veil of silence, and you are also familiar with their little peculiarities and their likes and dislikes. If you will bear these things in mind, you will know what topics are taboo.

And if you are among strangers the wise thing is to stick to glittering generalities and avoid personalities, and especially criticisms, for there is never a telling about the ramifications of family connections and who are friends or when an innocent remark may turn into a boomerang.

The second and an infallible rule for the cultivation of tact is to treat others as you would like them to treat you and to say to them the kind of things that you like to have said to you. That precludes, to begin with, sarcastic remarks and personal criticism, for none of us enjoy being the subject of a wisecrack nor do we like to be held up to ridicule. We want people to laugh with us instead of laughing at us.

Then we like to have people say pleasant things to us. We like to have a little personal taste remembered and to be made to feel that we are interesting and amusing and that others enjoy our conversation.

We like to be congratulated upon our little exploits and consoled with upon our misfortunes. We like a note of sympathy or a telegram of condolence. We like to have people ask us about our children and our pets and our hobbies and our gardens and our automobiles and for them to listen with an interested expression while we discourse upon them.

And we hate it when people tell us that our new dress is unbecoming or that we have put on weight or tell us of our children's faults or ask us embarrassing questions about things that we consider none of their business.

Try this simple recipe for cultivating tact and see if you do not draw people to you instead of driving them away from you. DOROTHY DIX.

EAR DOROTHY DIX—I own and operate a beauty shop in a town of about 30,000. For the last two years I have been having quite a case with a man who travels this town. I have talked to him about divorcing his wife, but they have been married a long time and I guess he still cares for her. I am worried over his wife has found out about me and I have learned that she has a lot of friends here and I am afraid I will hurt my business. Is there any way I can force him to divorce her and marry me? I feel that he should for I have given him a lot. What would you advise me to do? UDELE.

Answer: Charge it all off to profit and loss and let the lesson you have gained pay for what it cost you. When you gamble on as uncertain a thing as a married man's intentions, you should be a good enough sport not to whine when you lose out.

Certainly any woman should have sense enough to know that when she has an affair with a married man the odds are all against her and it isn't even a 50-to-1 shot that she won't be left at the post. Especially when the man is a traveling man, for traveling men are notoriously like the sailors who have sweetheart in every port, with the real sweetheart, the wife, at home to whom they go back in the end.

Anyway, it is seldom that any married man's love-making is to be taken seriously. It is just to pass away the time and to flatter his own vanity by seeing whether he can make a girl care for him and all of his talk about being unhappily married and having a wife who doesn't understand him and how he craves sympathy is just a line. He isn't in the least thinking of getting a divorce or desirous of marrying the girl before whom he is beating upon his breast and mourning out why, oh, why didn't I meet you in time!

And nobody can be very sympathetic with these husband-snatchers who get laid back in their own coin. For it is a terrible thing for a woman to try to break up another woman's home and take her husband from her and orphan little children, and the woman who attempts to do this gets no more than she deserves when she is also betrayed by a man who is faithful to no woman.

There is no way that you can make a man divorce his wife and marry you. Knowing that he is playing safe is what makes many a married man a gay philanderer. DOROTHY DIX.

EAR MISS DIX—I am a widow with three small children. I am much in love with a man who wants to marry me, but he says he will not take the children. What must I do?

Answer: Stick to your children and let the man go. Your first duty is to them and you will never be happy without them. DOROTHY DIX.
